HUNTINGDON PRESBYTERY

Its Fall Meeting to be Held at Centre Hall.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 6TH 1902

History of Presbyterianism in Penn's Valley—List of Ruling Elders and Older Male Members and

ADHERENTS OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

MR. EDITOR :—

As already announced, the Presbytery of Huntingdon will hold its regular fall meeting at Centre Hall, Pa., on Monday, October 6th, 1902, at 3:15 p. m.

According to arrangements made at their Spring meeting at Everrett Pa., the Presbytery will go in a body on Wednesday the 8th, of October, to the site of the old East Penn's Valley church in Gregg twp., about a mile east of Penn Hall, where the Presbytery was organized, and held its first meeting, April 14th, A. D. 1795. The object of their meeting there at this time is to dedicate a memorial tablet recently erected there by order of the Presbytery in commemoration of its organization. Appropriate services will be held, and an Historical address delivered.

At a meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, held in Philadelphia in May, A. D. 1794, the Huntingdon Presbytery was formed from part of the Presbytery of Carlisle, and its first meeting for organization was ordered to be held "at Mr. Martin's church in East Penn's Valley on the second Tuesday of April, A. D. 1795", one hundred and seven years ago.

At the time of its organization it included about fifteen counties in the central part of the State, extending from the Susquehanna river to the Allegheny mountains. It now contains about seventy-five congregations, and some seventy ministers, and includes the counties of Blair, Bedford, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Juniata, Centre, and the greater part of Clearfield county. Each pastoral charge is entitled to be represented at the meetings of Presbytery by their pastor and one Elder. Vacant churches are entitled to an elder. Ministers not pastors, are also expected to attend its meetings.

Let us now turn to the history of the congregation. In Mr. Martin's time it was known on the records of Presbytery as "East and West Penn's Valley, Warriors Mark and Half Moon."

Rev. James Martin was a native of Ireland, and came to America in 1774. He accepted a call from those congregations April 15th, 1789. He lived on what was known as the Musser place, about a mile east of Penn Hall, and the church was built on his land. He died here on the 20th, of June 1795, about two months after the organization of the Presbytery in his church. He was buried in the graveyard near the church. His grave is the only one there which bears any mark. The following inscription appears upon his tombstone, viz,—

"Here lies the body of Rev. James Martin, pastor of the first Presbyterian Congregation in Penns Valley, who died June 20, A. D. 1795, aged about 65 years."

"Deep was the wound, O death, and vastly wide
When he resigned his useful breath and died.
Ye sacred tribes, with pious sorrow mourn,
And drop a tear at your dear pastor's urn.

Concealed a moment from our longing eyes
Beneath this stone his mortal body lies.
Happy the Spirit lives, and will, we trust
In bliss associate with his precious dust."

Soon after Mr. Martin's death the East Penn's Valley church disappears from the records of Presbytery, and the Sinking Creek church at Centre Hill takes its place. The congregation in this part of the valley has ever since been known on the roll of Presbytery as the Sinking Creek church. The East Penn's Valley church building was erected in 1785. It was a plain log structure seating about 200 people. This was followed by a building of the same style, but larger and more costly, erected at Center Hill in 1793 It served the congregation until 1842, when it was superseded by a handsome brick building costing about $8000, which was first occupied in 1843. After being occupied for seventeen years, this edifice was thoroughly repaired and remodeled at a cost of about $2000. It was one of the neatest and most attractive country churches in the Presbytery. Yet this building has been abandoned as a place of worship for several years, and has recently been sold and torn down. A church building was erected at Centre Hall in 1888, and it has been used as the regular place of worship since the church at Centre Hill was abandoned. The congregation is still known on the roll of Presbytery as the Sinking Creek church.

The following is a list of the Ruling Elders, and the older Male Members and Adherents of the church at Centre Hill, fifty years ago, (A. D. 1852), viz :—

RULING ELDERS.

Wm. McCloskey, Esq.	Joshua Potter, Sr.
John W. Irvin.	William Milligan.

MEMBERS AND ADHERENTS.

Samuel R. Patton.	Francis McCoy.
Dr. Wm. I. Wilson, (E).	John Benner.

Clark Brisbin.	John Ross.
William W. Love.	John Leach.
John Love.	Thomas Davis.
James Love.	Robert Ross.
John Lee, Sr.	Robert Gilliland.

Those persons having (E) after their names were elected Ruling Elders subsequent to 1852. I have prepared this list from memory, aided by a number of the older citizens and church members. Possibly there may be some errors or omissions. In the days of my boyhood and early manhood I knew all of these men. Most of them were well-to-do, and comfortably fixed in life. A number of them were wealthy. Nearly all of them were men near middle life, or past it. So it is perhaps not strange that not a single one of them is living today. This list does not include any of the many excellent christian women belonging to the church at that time; nor their sons and daughters, many of whom were then active and efficient members of the church.

The Spring Creek or Slab Cabin church became the successor of the old West Penn's Valley or Cedar Creek church. This congregation and the Sinking Creek church were both organized in 1780, and were included in the same pastorate from 1789 to 1875, a period of eighty-six years. It would occupy too much time and space to give the history of their different pastors during all these years.

The Rev. Robert Hamill, D. D., became pastor of these churches in the spring of 1846. He continued to be their pastor until 1875, when he resigned the pastorate of the Sinking Creek church to accept a call for all his time to the Spring Creek church, then worshipping at Lemont. He continued pastor of this church until 1891. He was also the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Huntingdon for 44 years.

We cannot speak advisedly, yet the membership of the Sinking Creek church fifty years ago, probably exceeded two hundred. The early years of Dr. Hamill's ministry were seasons of great Spiritual prosperity in this church. They were marked by extensive revivals of religion. Many souls were brought into the Kingdom, and added to the church. Its membership in those days included many devout and spiritual-minded people. But we cannot fail to note the changes wrought in the church during these fifty years. She has sadly declined in number and in influence; and we naturally seek for the causes which have led to this result.

There is a popular impression that the decline of Presbyterianism in Penn's Valley has been due to the inroads made upon its membership by the German-speaking churches. Fortunately this has not been the case. The Presbyterians have stood by their colors. The descendants of those who were Presbyterians fifty years ago, are Presbyterians still. Hence, the cause of this decline must be sought for in other directions. The advent of railroads into the secluded hamlets of our valleys, and the spirit of discontent pervading our modern social life, have been potent factors in bringing about the decline of churches in our rural districts. The monotony of farm life, with its toil and drudgery, no longer satisfies the rising ambition of our

TROOPS ASKED FOR

Sheriff Schadt, of Lackawanna County Telegraphs Governor Stone.

WANTS SOME SOLDIERS SENT

At the Same Time He Issues a Proclamation Warning Strikers to Refrain From Riot.

MANY OUTBREAKS ARE REPORTED

SCRANTON, September 23. — Sheriff Schadt, of Lackawanna county, Monday at 7.30 o'clock telegraphed Governor Stone to send troops to his assistance.

The sheriff had just given to the newspaper men a proclamation announcing that he would call troops if the lawlessness did not cease, when he received a series of telephone calls to quell disturbances up the valley. He found on investigation that the situation was such that he could not cope with it, and sent a call for troops. Adjutant General Stewart called the sheriff by 'phone at 9 o'clock, and had a long conference with him. The adjutant general suggested that a posse of members of the Citizen's Alliance be called upon for assistance. While the sheriff was preparing to act on this suggestion he received more reports of violence up and down the valley, and at once sent another urgent telegram to the governor calling for immediate assistance.

The worst of Monday's outbreaks occurred at Archbald. A crowd of 200 strikers, mostly foreigners, ransacted the quarters occupied by the forty men employed at the Raymond washery of the Ontario and Western company, while the men were at work and then meeting the men as they were returning drove them back to the refuge of the washery. The mob then returned to the colliery proper, drove out the engineers, firemen, pumpmen and guards and took possession of the breaker. The plant of the Crescent Electric Light company, which is supplied with steam from the breaker had to shut down and the whole region around was left in darkness. In the attack on the breaker two men were shot, one a striker and the other a workman. Their names or condition could not be learned.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Miles McAndrew was attacked and shot at by a mob at Olyphant.

The steam pipes of the Pennsylvania Coal company's colliery, at Old Forge, were blown up with dynamite Monday. Two colored cooks at the William A. colliery, were rescued by deputy sheriffs from a crowd that was threatening to lynch them.

Wandered in Black Forest Six Weeks

Mrs. Mary Button, who left her son's home at Haneysville, on August 10, to walk to the home of another son several miles away, and who has been missing since that time, was found Friday. When discovered by two hunters she was near Cross Forks and was nearly dead from exposure and hunger. She had lost her way and had been wandering aimlessly about in the Black Forest for nearly six weeks. She was placed in a blanket and was carried to Cross Forks where physicians are endeavoring to save her life.

Mrs. Button is 82 years old. She had frequently walked the distance from Haneyville to her other son's home, and when she started in August, nothing was thought of it by her relatives. She spent the night of August 10 at the lumber camp of Benjamin Herritt, at the head of State Run. Then she continued her journey, only to drop out of sight for many weeks. Searching parties have been scouring the mountains daily since that, but could not find the slightest trace of her. The relatives, who gave up the search in despair, were overjoyed to hear of the discovery of the hunters.

The old woman is still to, weak to talk. During her wanderings in the forests she subsisted solely on berries and herbs.

The Price of Brooms.

A letter from Arcola, Ill., says there will be no cheap brooms for the next 18 months.

A dealer's canvass in Illinois, Kansas and Oklahoma shows that this year's broom corn acreage is 30 to 35 per cent. short of the normal. Last season's stock was used up by September 1, and new stock will not reach the trade before October 1.

The annual consumption of broom corn is between 34,000 and 36,000 tons. This year's crop will not exceed 20,000 tons. The surplus of 1899 and 1900 helped out last year. Market is now strong at $110 to $125 a ton. It is thought new corn will open at $140 to $150.

WILL VISIT THIS SECTION.

Miss Charlotte E. Hawes to Be in Bellefonte October 23rd.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of Huntingdon Presbytery has engaged Miss Charlotte E. Hawes, of Wei Hien, China, to visit among its organizations throughout the Presbytery. Miss Hawes is the daughter of a former pastor in Huntingdon. Her experience in China, particularly in the Boxer uprising of 1900, gives her a thrilling story, and she is a most enthusiastic and interesting speaker. Following is the order of Miss Hawes' itinerary :

September 22, Warriorsmark; 23, Spruce Creek; 25, Peale; 26, Winburn; 27, Pine Grove Bethel, district meeting; 28, Clearfield and Curwensville; 29, Kerrmoor; 30, Philipsburg; October 1, Osceola; 3 5, Lower and Middle Tuscarora. 6, Upper Tuscarora; 7, Lewistown; 8 Little Valley; 9, Milroy; 10, West Kishacoquillas; 12, East Kishacoquillas; 13, Mount Union; 14, Orbisonia; 15, Shirleysburg; 15, Huntingdon; 17, Everett; 19, Sinking Valley and Lower Spruce Creek; 20, Port Matilda; 21, Unionville; 22, Milesburg; 23, Bellefonte; 24, Boalsburg; 27, State College; 28, Pine Grove; 29, Tyrone; 30, Cosiport; 31, Irvona; November 2, Bellwood; 3, Birmingham; 4, Hollidaysburg; 5, Williamsburg; 6-10, Altoona.

State's Opening Day.

The College was opened at 8 o'clock Thursday with a Freshman class numbering about three hundred.

The present chapel was crowded to its full capacity while a number of the older men were compelled to wait in the halls.

President Atherton made a short address to both old and new men, in which he presented very forcibly the advantages of the State College student. Also the manliness and advantages desired from making a redoubled effort to secure the prizes established by Mr. White at the last year's Commencement.

These prizes are well worth obtaining and each student should make it an aim in his college life as well as to feel it his duty to secure them.

Dr. Atherton also pointed out the relation of the Commonwealth to the State College and that from this relationship, the future education and advancement.

A Pretty Wedding.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Shirk at Runville at noon Thursday. The contracting parties being their daughter Miss Lula Shirk and Mr. Howard Wells. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Sparks of the U. B. church, in the presence of a goodly number of guests. The bride was attended by Miss Myrtle Lucas as maid of honor and Harry Bilger, of Pleasant Gap; officiated as best man. The house was beautiful with asters, dahlias and ferns and after the congratulations a fine wedding breakfast was served. After visiting among their friends for a short time Mr. and Mrs. Wells will make their home in this place. The groom is a diligent young carpenter and his bride is an agreeable young woman.

Another Barn Burned.

The large barn on the farm of Mrs. Pugh and Miss Clara Valentine situated in Spring Township near Nigh Bank and occupied by Henry Kline, was entirely destroyed by fire about ten o'clock Thursday night.

It was fortunately discovered in time to save the live stock but Mr. Kline lost his crops of grain and hay.

The origin of the fire is unknown but is supposed to have originated from spontaneous combustion caused by the second crop of clover hay becoming overheated.

Fortunately both barn and crops were insured, the former in a Cash Company and the latter in the Patrons of Husbandry.

President Roosevelt Undergoes an Operation.

As a result of the injuries received by President Roosevelt at Pittsfield he was compelled to undergo a painful but not serious surgical operation at Indianapolis Tuesday.

This necessitates abandoning his Western trip. Although it is a great disappointment to all concerned it is imperative that he have perfect rest and consequently has returned to Washington where he will remain until entirely well.

In being thrown from his carriage he was pitched about forty feet, landing on his left side, and a bruise was inflicted on his shin bone which, from standing and walking, was so aggravated as to cause the trouble. Since it has received proper care and attention no serious effects are expected to follow.

Mrs. I. J. Dreise wife of the popular station agent at Lemont spent Thursday in Bellefonte.

A GREAT FLIGHT.

An English Aeronaut Eclipsed the Work Done by Santos-Dumont.

HIS AIRSHIP IS A WONDER

He Went Thirty Miles and Had No Trouble and It Very Gracefully Circled a Tower.

MADE SAFE AND EASY ASCENT

LONDON, Sept. 22.—Stanley Spencer, the aeronaut who has eclipsed Santos-Dumont by his wonderful flight of thirty miles in his airship over London, made the following statement Saturday :

"During yesterday morning the atmosphere was very hazy; altogether the weather seemed unpromising for the ascent. However, when I arrived at the Crystal Palace I found the atmosphere there much clearer, so I immediately proceeded to make arrangements for my first flight over London.

"At 3:30 p. m. I gave the word to 'let go' and headed for the north tower of the Crystal Palace. As I learned afterward, the crowd below thought I was going to be dashed into the side of the tower, but when the airship was 500 yards away from it I pulled the rudder rope.

"The airship gracefully circled around the tower. I then headed for Sydenham and Dulwich. When over East Dulwich I plainly saw that the fog was still very thick over London, so I decided not to attempt to circle the dome of St. Paul's which was my original intention.

"Instead I took a northwesterly course, for the atmosphere was much clearer in that direction. Then I turned to the westward and sailed over the Thames above Victoria bridge, on which there was a tremendous crowd.

"I made a return trip over the river, the ship admirably answering her helm. I then proceeded over Earl's Court where, at an altitude of 1,500 feet, I made several evolutions around the great wheel of the exhibition. Then I sailed to Hammersmith and again proved how easily dirigible is my balloon by easily making several more turns.

"Again crossing the Thames over at Putney, I sailed in the direction of Acton and did much maneuvering over this district. It began to grow dark, so I concluded I had best steer for Harrow and I there eventually landed in a field.

"The airship landed in the grass as gently as a butterfly alights on a flower.

"I carefully estimate that I sailed about 30 miles. This is nearly 20 miles more than the longest distance Santos-Dumont ever accomplished.

"After alighting I soon found a wagon which carried me and my ship to my home, at Highburg, where I arrived about 4 o'clock this morning. The ship had not suffered the slightest damage and, as you see, I am perfectly safe and sound.

"I have as yet made no arrangements for another ascent, but probably I will do so before long.

"At one time I feared an explosion of the balloon, but the automatic valve prevented such a catastrophe. The engine also threatened to ignite the gas of the balloon, but this danger I also overcome. I had the machine under perfect control and could turn in any direction.

"Persons in the London thoroughfares looked like black lines of ants. I dropped rubber balls as I went along to prove what an army could do with an air-ship carrying bombs."

A Useful Barometer.

According to a French meteorologist a cup of hot coffee is an infallible barometer.

"Put a lump of sugar in the cup," he says, "and then watch the air bubbles which are formed on the surface. If they form themselves into a group in the centre the weather will be fine. If they adhere to the cup, forming a circle, it is a token of rain or snow, according to the season of the year. Finally, if they separate from each other and occupy no fixed position, it is safe to predict that the weather will be changeable.

The New Weather Prophet.

A new weather prophet has sprung up in Reading. He is a scientific astronomer He says now we are entering on a drought to last until the middle of October. The exceptionally cool weather will last for seven years and it may be twelve before we have any real hot weather. Next spring we will have lots of rain with a serious drought next summer. John S. Fritz is this prophet's names.

SHORT AND PITHY.

Mr. Pattison in his Centre Hall speech did not refer to the prosperity of the country. That would not have suited his text.

Henry Wetzel is not squandering much wealth on this campaign. He has not forgotten his experience of two years ago.

We wonder how Mr. Pattison enjoyed his reception at Bellefonte. He must have a high opinion of Democratic hospitality.

The United States has more gold in the Treasury than it ever had before, and still in the face of all this the calamity howlers are abroad asking for a change.

J. N. Schoonover, our candidate for Legislature from Philipsburg, made a ten strike by going to Centre Hall. He made hosts of friends among the people on that side.

The government must be in a pretty good condition when it can borrow money at 2 per cent. If any Democrat questions this, let him examine the bond quotations.

Johnie Rowe, the lilliputian candidate for Recorder, was in town last week. When Johnie gets his full growth it will be time for him to talk about running for office.

The Democrats claim anywhere from sixteen to twenty thousands persons at the picnic last Thursday. Wonder where they all came from ? The ticket agent at Bellefonte sold only 435 tickets that day.

We wonder whether Mr. Pattison referred to the empty dinner pail which was so common during his administration. We doubt very much if he even mentioned his free silver proclivities.

James B. Strohm as a citizen, bears an enviable reputation. Even the Democratic papers cannot point to one spot in his life that is not clean. He is a man who will conscientiously represent us in the Legislature.

J. Will Kepler is not very enthusiastic in his campaign. The funeral expression on his face gives evidence of this, but he can take comfort in the fact that he is still a young man and will have an opportunity to "try, try again."

Even if Phil. Foster did make a mistake and go to the Grange Picnic with an odd pair of shoes on his feet, he managed to get around and see the people, and to see him and become acquainted with him is to be his friend and his friends will support him at the polls.

Earle C. Tuten, the youngest candidate on either ticket, made his maiden effort at political work last week. There is something about Earle which you can't help but like. He has a pleasant smile and kind word for everyone, and being a thoroughly educated young man is just the person for Register.

D. E. Hibner, of DuBois, the hardware prodigy, who is posing as a candidate for Congress on the Democratic ticket, was in town last week. We did not see him but those who did, informed us that he was very much like other men, even though he was able to sweep a store when fourteen years old.

Henry Lowry is an industrious man, and a busy one, and consequently may not be able to canvass the county as thoroughly as he should, but remember if elected, he will make a faithful and efficient officer. We said if elected, we meant will be, for the sheriff's office is not going to be taken from the people by any lawyer.

We guess Alex Archey has given up the race. Even Democratic ladies' were wearing Earle Tuten's cards at the Grange Picnic. This is all your own fault, Alex. You have had thousands of opportunities to make friends with the fair sex who are a powerful allay in a political campaign. You have missed your opportunity and after the election will have to blame but yourself for the defeat which is awaiting you.

The "Sun Flower" visaged editor of the Watchman took occasion in last week's issue to pay his compliments and threaten us with dire vengeance for an article which appeared in our columns. Now, Pete, get your guns and dogs ready and do your best, but remember, that while our intrenchments may be hastily thrown up, we will be behind them to reply with the most modern ammunition, and lots of it, and will defend ourselves to the last extremity, so if you should get hurt don't blame us —About 180 cars of iron ore from Lake Erie are now being taken to the Bellefonte and Nittany furnaces over the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania.

Additional Locals.

—Hard P. Harris while out shooting pigeons Thursday afternoon had his face badly powder burned by the explosion of his gun.

—Wilbur F. Reeder Esq., is making extensive improvements to his already handsome Law offices, when completed he will have the finest suit of rooms occupied by the legal profession.

—Mr. DeLaun Stewart has commenced repairs and improvements to the house he recently purchased. We have not seen the plans but are informed when completed it will be one of handsomest residences on Linn Street.

—Mrs. Mollie Valentine entertained a party of 18 at six hand euchre Thursday evening. The tally cards were small yellow pumpkins hung with tiny red peppers and both the refreshments and prizes were well worth taking.

—At the last meeting of the Bellefonte Lodge I. O. O. F. it was decided to vacate their rooms, third floor of Crider's Exchange and lease the rooms in Reynolds bank building which the Masonic Order will abandon as soon as their new building is completed.

—The ladies of the W. C. T. U. of Milesburg will hold an Ice Cream Festival on Saturday evening, Sept. 27, in the Public Hall. The proceeds of which will be devoted to the purpose of building a new fence and otherwise improving the Milesburg cemetery.

—Wednesday mail brought quite an addition to our exchange list in The Bradford News. This is the first number issued and it is one of the brightest looking sheets which comes to our desk, and full of news. We hope it will continue a regular visitor and we wish the Proprietors Messrs Potter & Reidy unbounded success in their undertaking.

—Contractor Bilger had the iron bridge over Spring creek, at the Nail works, ready to swing Saturday It is the structure that was carried away by the flood last spring and left high and dry near "the turn." Bilger's men have taken it apart, straightened out the twisted irons, welded some broken ones and replaced it on the old abutments.

—The Hebrews New Years comes on Oct. 1st. and "Yom Kipur" or the "Day of Atonement," comes on Oct. 11th. On these two occasions the stores under the management of the Hebrews in the town will be closed from six o'clock on the evening of the 1st to the 2nd. and 11th to the 12th. These days are always strictly observed by our Jewish people in Bellefonte.

—Wednesday morning during an altercation between William Hendricks, who resides about a mile east of this place, and Ira Gunsallus an old resident of Eagleville, the latter was badly bruised about the head, which rendered him unconscious. A report was circulated here Wednesday morning that he had died, but upon inquiry it was learned that he is still living. His son arrived in the afternoon and took the injured man home. —Thursday's Lock Haven Express.

—"A Hot Scotch Major as produced at Garman's opera house Thursday night was fine far exceeding any thing expected. The cast of artists being of a high order and every one performing his or her piece with the ease and grace of accomplished professionals. The male members were handsome, and the ladies charming. The stage settings were elaborate and the costumes elegant. We are glad that Manager Garman is willing to favor our people with first class attractions and he should receive encouragement and patronage from the citizens of Bellefonte. No one was disappointed with the entertainment Thursday night.

—One of the best attractions on the road this season is "side Tracked" which is headed this way and is booked to appear here this evening September 25th. It is an up to date comedy drama, bordering on the farce, is bright and clean, full of original humor, startling surprises, catchy music, bright specialties and striking situations. The company is an unusually strong one and the attraction is appearing to crowded houses wherever presented.

—The Union furnace manufacturing plant, makers of hardware novelties, at Union Furnace, Huntingdon county, sustained a heavy loss from fire Tuesday afternoon. The fire started from an oil pipe bursting at the welding furnace in the shovel plant and before it could be gotten under control the shovel plant building and storage house, together with the company's general storehouse, were totally destroyed. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Mr. Clarence Longacre, who has been the efficient clerk for the China Hall company, owned and managed by Mr. Henry Linn, has accepted an excellent position with a firm in the same business in Williamsport. We are sorry to loose Clarence from our community for he is one of our reliable young men, and we wish him unbounded success in his new position.

The White Ribbon Convention.

The eighth annual convention of the Centre County Womans Christian Temperance Union met in Petrikin Hall Wednesday at 2 p. m. Representatives being present from Milesburg, Philipsburg, Unionville, Blanchard and other places.

Mrs. Clees the president called the convention to order after which devotional exercises were conducted by Miss Dornblaser of Williamsport all united with spirit in singing "Stand Up for Jesus," Rev. W. H. Brown in a fervent prayer invoked "God's blessing on the cause and those engaged in working for temperance," Mrs. Thomas R. Hayes sang a beautiful solo entitled "Have You Sought."

The President appointed the following committees:

On Courtesies: Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Gainfort.

On Resolutions: Miss Switzer, Miss Shipley and Mrs. Harris.

On Enrollment: Miss Fisher.

On Auditing; Mrs. Hayes and Mrs. Bechtol.

The annual address of the President was one of encouragement to the members of the W. C. T. U. and an earnest appeal was made to continue the work in the same earnest, and prayerful manner as has been done in the past.

Dr. Anna Shaw addressed the Convention on "The encouraging signs of the times."

The Treasurer, Mrs. Mitchell made a report which was gratifying to all.

The second and last day of the W. C. T. U. convention, held Thursday, was full of interest and largely attended.

At the morning session Mrs. John L. Kurtz delivered an address of welcome to the visiting delegates and others who were present from a distance. Her opening sentences were of a facetious nature, reference being made to "Josiah Allen's Wife," which she applied to the convention guests, and in a most cordial manner welcomed them all to our beautiful town.

She referred in a touching and impressive way to the memory of Miss Marion Petrikin, who out of the goodness of her kindly heart presented to the W. C. T. U. the ground upon which their beautiful temple of temperance and monument of her love and devotion to Christ's work was erected; comparing this gift to the generosity and philanthrophy of Stephen Girard and Peter Cooper who, by their benificence, have done so much for their fellow men and whose good deeds will never be forgotten.

Mrs. Kurtz closed her remarks by expressing the hope that the convention would accomplish much for the benefit of the society and the temperance cause.

Mrs. Silas Reese, of Philipsburg, responded on the part of the convention.

The delegates present gave short and pointed reports of the work being accomplished in various parts of the county.

Miss Ella Switzer made a full and comprehensive report of the work being accomplished by the Loyal Temperance Legion, which was listened to with close attention and revealed the fact that this branch of the work was progressing in a satisfactory manner.

Mrs. Gainfort, of Bellefonte, gave an interesting account of the Mothers' Meetings and Railroad Work.

The afternoon session was taken up by hearing reports on "Scientific Temperance Instruction," Temperance Literature, etc., the election of officers and delightful music rendered by Mrs. Thos. R. Hayes and Mrs. J. C. Meyer.

The following officers were chosen to serve during the ensuing year: President, Mrs. A. M. Clees, of Philipsburg; secretary, Mrs. M. B. Cross, of Philipsburg; treasurer. Mrs. Isaac Mitchell, of Bellefonte; vice president at large, Mrs; L. T. Eddy, of Milesburg.

The next convention will be held in Petrikin Hall Sept. 1st, 1903.

Death of Perry McDowell.

Perry McDowell, an aged and highly respected citizen of Marion township, died Friday morning at the home of his son, Harry, in that township of infirmities incident to old age.

Most of his life he was engaged in farming but for several years ran a grist mill at Howard. He had been a resident of Marion township all his life with the exception of a few years when he resided at Abdera, just across the line in Clinton county. He was aged 85 years and 10 days.

Surviving him are his son, Harry, with whom he made his home, and the following daughters: Mrs. S. H. Bennison, of Abdera; Mrs. J. E. Tibbens, of Beech Creek, Mrs. J. W. Blair, of Bell's Centre, Ohio; Mrs. James Allison, of Seamond, Ohio.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house. Deceased was a life-long Presbyterian, so the services were conducted by Rev. Brown, the Presbyterian pastor at Mill Hall, and Rev. Mark, of the Buffalo Run Presbyterian charge. The interment at Jacksonville.

ARBOR DAYS ORDER.

Friday, October 17, Designated for Rural School Observance.

Professor Schaeffer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has issued the following Arbor Day order:

"Trees can be planted in the fall as well as in the spring. Hence it has become customary for many schools to celebrate autumn Arbor Day in addition to the Arbor Day which the Governor annually designated by proclamation in the spring of the year. For rural schools closing before the middle of April, the autumn Arbor Day is the only day which they can observe.

"In accordance with this Friday, October 17, 1902, is hereby named as autumn Arbor Day, and the directors, teachers and pupils of our public schools are requested to observe the day by planting trees and other suitable exercises. The story of trees famous in history may be told. The value of trees for utility and adornment, the effect of forests in retaining and distributing rainfall, and the forestry movement under which half a million acres have been purchased by the State and set apart as a public reservation may be profitably discussed. The career now opening up to young men who make forestry a profession should be pointed out. But above all else, the pupils should be taught by actual experience how to plant trees, how to promote their growth and how to protect them from noxious insects and other enemies."

Highest Point in the State.

E. Matley, a civil engineer in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad company who has charge of the extension of the Crabtree and Herminie branches of the Pennsy, in Westmoreland county, has made the discovery that Big Bald Knob, in the Allegheny mountains, on the line between Somerset and Bedford counties, is the most elevated point in Pennsylvania. Big Bald Knob is 3000.7 above sea level, and is about eight miles from the Cambria county line. Until Mr. Matley's recent survey, whereby he proved the height of Big Bald Knob, the highest known point in Pennsylvania was near Luthersburg, Clearfield county, where a peak reaches the elevation of 2,780 feet.

Mr. Matley has furnished his surveys and calculations to the government engineers having in charge the new geological survey of the State, and the latter have accepted Big Bald Knob as the culminating point for Pennsylvania.—Ex.

Methodism's Bi-Centenary.

World-wide Methodism is beginning to interest itself in the bicentenary of the birth of John Wesley, which event will occur in June of next year. In this county where Methodism is remarkably strong, extensive arrangements are being made for its due observance. No definite steps have yet been taken by the parent body in England, but it is likely to come before the conference, which meets soon in Manchester.

It will be interesting to many to learn that the journals and letters of John Wesley are to be brought out in a new, enlarged and especially edited form, under the direction of the Wesleyan book-room, in the near future. They will be a suitable memorial to the famous evangelist who nearly 200 years ago first saw the light at Epworth rectory.

Professor Pays.

Professor I. Harvey Brumbaugh, acting president of Juniata college, Huntingdon, will have to pay Miss Cora Keime, of Sommerset county $9,250 damages for trifling with a lady's affections. The Dunkards, to which sect both parties to this interesting suit belongs, are a serious minded people, and love-making among them is evidently no holiday play. Witnesses from far and near were subpoenied on the case and gave the affair widespread prominence. Miss Keime thought she had suffered to the extent of $25,000 but the jury whittled the amount down to $9,250.

—A daring robbery was committed a few nights ago at the boarding house of the saw mill of Hagenbuch & Campbell at Asaph, Tioga county. There were 32 men asleep in the boarding house and the clothing of every one of them was searched for valuables by the thieves. There was $32 in cash taken. The largest amount taken from any one was taken from the trousers pocket of Robert Fullerton. His pantaloons, which were placed under his pillow when he went to bed, were drawn from under his head and $15 in money was missing when he awoke.

About 7900 Have left.

The anthracite strikers are flocking to the bituminous district embracing Irwin, Madison, Latrobe and Greensburg fields. Fully 2,000 miners from the anthracite fields have arrived there and it is estimated that there are now in the Pittsburg district over 7,000 of them.

—There never was a time in the history of America when there was such universal prosperity and happiness throughout this favored land. We certainly ought to have a glad Thanksgiving this year, for as good as the past has been, 1902 goes far ahead of all its predecessors.

Statesman and Gambler.

Charles James Fox, the English statesman, was even more notorious in the gaming world than he was famous in the world of politics. He had squandered $250,000 before coming of age. He became one of the most profligate gamesters of the vicious days in which he lived. Some of his finest displays in debate were sandwiched between excitement such as would unnerve most men who had no serious business on hand. Walpole has given a glimpse of a typical passage in this extraordinary man's life. He had to take part in the discussion on the thirty-nine articles in parliament on a certain Thursday. He had sat up playing hazard from Tuesday evening until 5 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. An hour before he had recovered $60,000 that he had lost and by dinner time, which was 5 o'clock, ended losing $55,000. On Thursday he spoke in the debate, went to dinner at past 11 at night; thence to a club, where he drank till 7 the next morning; thence to a gambling house, where he won $30,000, and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon he set out on a journey to Newmarket.

Lengthening a Bee's Tongue.

Man is often blamed for driving to extinction many sorts of beautiful creatures, but the account is far more than balanced by the amount of good he has done for those animals which proved useful and could be tamed.

Take the case of the bee. The bee lives by its tongue, with which organ it is able to extract the honey from flowers. Now, a bee's tongue is naturally about a twenty-fifth of an inch long. Clever beekeepers, by keeping only those bees with naturally long tongues, have succeeded in lengthening the tongues of a number of bee colonies to the extent of another hundredth of an inch. It does not sound much, but it enables those insects to do a quarter as much work again in the same time.

Man has done more than this for bees. He has given them ready made homes, where they are safe from wasps and other enemies; frames for making their combs without using large quantities of wax for outside walls, and food during flowerless weather.

Saving the Money.

In a certain parish in Scotland collectors were going round soliciting contributions for the kirk. On coming to a wretched little hovel they hesitated whether or not to enter, but finally decided to "try their luck." A hale old man greeted them, and to him they explained their errand, but he really had nothing to give them, he said.

"Can't yo gi'e up your whisky?" one of the visitors asked. "No," he said, "I don't drink 'whusky.'" Perhaps then he could forego the pleasures of snuff. No, he didn't use snuff.

The collectors prepared to move on. "Stop a bit!" cried the old fellow. "I pay Sandy, the barber, twopence every Saturday night for shaving me. Tell the meenister he can have the twopence if he'll come and shave me himself!"

The Student's Prayer.

There was long ago a divinity hall presided over by a most amiable and dignified professor. On certain days the senior students opened the proceedings of the day with prayer. One morning a raw youth from a remote region performed this duty, and it was a memorable occasion. None who were present can forget how the venerable professor turned and gazed on the untutored lad, who prayed for him as follows: "Lord, have mercy on our professor, for he is weak and ignorant. Strengthen his feeble hands, confirm his tottering knees, and grant that he may go out and in before us like the he goat before the flock."—"Twenty-five Years of St. Andrews."

Merely Misplaced.

"Captain," said the cabin boy, "is a thing lost when you know where it is?"

"No, you fool," answered the captain, who, being a wise man, abhorred frivolous questions.

Exit cabin boy.—New York Times.

It Wouldn't Work.

"I found," said the man who frequents the races, "that I seemed to win every second day, so I made up my mind to take a fresh start and bet only every second day."

"And how did you come out?"

"Well, I think I must have started the scheme the wrong day."—Chicago Post.

The Kind of Judge He Wanted.

The story is told of an Irishwoman who tried to console her husband with the remark that he would have a fair trial and an upright judge. "Yerra, woman," replied her spouse, "what'd I want wid an upright judge? What I wants is a judge that'll lean a little."

Misinformed.

Smith (angrily)—I understand you said my face was enough to stop an automobile?

Jones—I certainly never said anything of the kind.

Smith—Then I must have been misinformed?

Jones—That's what you have. Instead of stopping at sight of your face, any reputable automobile would increase its speed.

Why He Desired a Cannon.

It is related that an Indian chief once approached General Crook and wanted to borrow a cannon.

"Do you expect me to loan you a cannon with which to kill my soldiers?" the old veteran inquired.

"No," the chief replied; "kill soldiers with a club. Want cannon to kill cowboys."

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by which strengthens the whole digestive system

A WOMAN DEPOSITOR.

She Got Her Money, and Got It, Too, the Way She Wanted It.

"One day during the busy season, when every moment was precious," said a bank teller, "a woman presented her passbook and asked to have her money, which amounted to $600.

"I always endeavor to save needless work, and, thinking that she intended making a payment to some one who would only redeposit the money, I asked her if she intended handing all the money over to one person; if so a check marked 'good' would answer her purpose as well as the cash, besides saving labor.

"Crushing me with one disdainful look, she replied:

"'I wish the money.'

"The money was duly handed out in ten dollar bills. After spending some fifteen anxious minutes in her efforts to count the money, all the while licking her fingers regularly, she handed it back to me, all mixed up, with the remark:

"'I wish to leave this with you again; I just wanted to see if it was all here.'

The following year the operation was repeated, but I was ready for her. The next time I handed her six one hundred dollar bills. Much to my confusion and complete discomfiture, she returned them, saying, 'I want those tens I left you.'

"She got them."—Philadelphia Times.

How the Ancients Moved Stone.

An unfinished obelisk found in a quarry at Syene showed how the ancients separated these immense monoliths from the native rock. A groove marking the boundary of the stone contained a number of holes into which wooden wedges were firmly driven. The groove was then filled with water, and the swelled wedges cracked the granite the whole length of the groove. The detached block was then pushed forward upon rollers made from palm trees to a large timber raft on the edge of the Nile, where it remained until the next inundation floated the raft to the city where the obelisk was to be set up.

Thousands of hands then pushed it on rollers up an inclined plane to the front of the temple, where it was to stand. The pedestal had previously been placed in position, and a firm causeway of sand covered with planks led to the top of it. Then by means of rollers, levers and ropes made of date palm the obelisk was gradually hoisted into an upright position. In no case has an obelisk been found to be out of the true perpendicular.

IN SLOCUM'S MEMORY

Equestrian Statue of the General Unveiled at Gettysburg.

THREE GOVERNORS WERE PRESENT

Heroe's Old Regiment Participates in the Exercises Which Were Interesting and Impressive.

ODELL THE ORATOR OF THE DAY

GETTYSBURG, Sept. 20.—In the presence of thousands of old soldiers and an immense throng of people the equestrian statue of Major General Henry Warren Slocum was unveiled here yesterday afternoon.

Special trains Thursday night brought General Daniel E. Sickles, Gov. Odell, of New York; Gov. Murphy, of New Jers y, and other distinguished men, including former Pension Commissioner Dudley, who lost a leg in the battle of Gettysburg while in command of the Nineteenth Indiana regiment.

Gov. Stone arrived yesterday morning and was received with a salute by the United States battery and cavalry. The Seventh Regiment National Guard of New York, Col. Appleton commanding, arrived yesterday morning and marched to their camp at the eastern base of Cemetery Hill.

The dedication ceremonies were largely attended. They opened with music by the Seventh Regiment band, followed by a prayer by Rev. W. T. Pray. General Sickles acted as chairman. A letter of regret was read from Gen. James Longstreet by Gen. Horatio C. King.

The monument was then unveiled by Gov. Odell amid the firing of the Major General's salute by the Fourth United States field battery. Addresses by Gen. James C. Rogers, of Sandy Hill, and Col. A. E. Baxter, of Elmira, followed. After that Gen. Sickles introduced Governors Odell, Stone and Murphy, each of whom delivered brief addresses.

In the evening the Society of the Army of the Potomac held a meeting in Xavier Hall. Seth Low, Mayor of Greater New York, made the principal address. The society was welcomed by Dr. E. J. Wolf, of Gettysburg.

Daughters of the American Revolution.

The next session of the State body of this patriotic order of ladies, will be held in Petrikin Hall, Bellefonte, on October 8th, 9th and 10th and will be presided over by Miss Susan Carpenter Frazer of Lancaster, State Regent.

There will be representative delegates from every Chapter in the State, besides many distinguished visitors from different parts of the country.

Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks President General of the order of Washington, D. C. will also be here.

Bellefonte is to be congratulated upon having this convention assemble in our town. Its members are all descendents of Revolutionary patriots, and belong consequently to the oldest families in the country, who were loyal to our flag at the time we rebelled against the yoke of British tyranny.

It would be a proper thing for our citizens to do, and would sustain our reputation for hospitality, if we would make some effort to entertain this convention, and would suggest that arrangements be made to convey the entire body to State College by a special train, and provide a dinner at University Inn, that they might see and inspect one of the principal educational institutions of our state.

Let some of the progressive people make a move in this direction, and we assure them that there will be no difficulty in securing the financial help required.

Governor and Mrs. Hastings will tender them a reception at their beautiful home on Allegheny Street, which is a graceful act on their part, but let the rest of us show them the courtesy of this trip to State College.

In a few days we hope to publish the list of delegates who will be here.

Death of Mrs. Sarah Shope.

Death has again visited our town and removed from it Mrs. Sarah S. Shope, wife of Mr. D. F. Shope, of Milesburg.

Mrs. Shope was born in Benner township in 1823 and after her marriage lived at Milesburg until last spring when she came to the College and made home with her son, Mr. J. B. Shope, where she died Sunday morning at 5 o'clock. She was a member of the Baptist church at Milesburg for many years and was respected by all who knew her.

Mrs. Shope was the mother of five children of which two daughter have preceded her to the grave, leaving two sons, one daughter and her husband to mourn her loss. The children who are living are: Theodore A. Shope, Little Rock, Ark.; J. B. Shope, State College and Mrs. Clara B. Kephart, of Johnsonburg.

The funeral services were held in the Baptist church at Milesburg Tuesday and was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Houck. Interment in the Advent cemetery. Death was caused by paralysis. Aged 79 years and 7 months.—State College times.

THE PICNIC AND THE "LOOP."

A Delightful Trip Among Interesting and Genial People.

I am sure that I never enjoyed an outing more than that of last week when I started by way of Axe Mann. Perhaps the only disagreeable feature of it was the prevalence of "dust, dust everywhere and plenty of it to eat." Serpents may enjoy eating dirt, but I prefer eating ice cream. I don't know how much dirt scientists agree that each person must eat every year, but those who were out last week partook of more than their weekly portion. Mrs. Harvey Watkins of Axe Mann decided to take the REPUBLICAN, and Ottis Hile handed over the necessary cash as he softly murmured, 'Of course I will, Newt."

The venerable W. S. Tate welcomed me cheerfully and made me feel quite rich. Lloyd S. Zettle resides over in Lauvertown and his home will hereafter receive the paper. I spent the first night at the home of Henry E. Zimmerman and no one can excel his agreeable wife, son and daughters in kindness. Most luscious grapes were at once provided for refreshment and other productions of the fruitful farm weighed down the table. Mr. Zimmerman is a gentleman of energy and has several enterprises on hand all the time. I went over to Linden Hall where I spent Tuesday, passing the noon hour at the home of James Swab. Perhaps some persons would have been slightly discouraged by such experience as was mine at Linden Hall as I did not add one to my list, but "faint heart ne'er won fair lady" and the weather itself was so inspiring that such a word as discouragement was eliminated from my dictionary, besides I rather enjoyed that talk on temperance in Ross' store with such gentlemen as Messrs. Ross, McFarlane, Davis and others. I returned to the agreeable shades of the mountain and spent the night with George Thomas and family, as to whose excellence and cheer words are entirely too tame to describe.

I walked quite a distance next day before I got any results and the first victim was Jerry Smith of Centre Hall. Of course after dinner and a pleasant talk with Postmaster Geo. M. Boal and B. D. Brisben I went to the picnic, listened delightedly and with instruction to Dr. Silas C. Swallow and then perambulated toward the Old Fort, believing that lodging that night might be at a premium and so got in ahead of the crowd. I met Alvin Stump of Linden Hall and added him to the list. Tell you what, the Old Fort hotel was lively that night and people pounded for admittance until 2 a. m. and then went to the barn. Landlord Shawver provided well for me and I had my choice of bedfellows, and it was all right, wasn't it, Tom?

Thursday morning I went on toward Centre Hill. One of the first gentlemen I met was Jas. B. Strohm, the sturdy and sterling candidate on the Republican ticket for assembly. I can vouch for it right here that Mr. Strohm's near neighbors all admire him and numerous were the enconiums of praise I heard concerning him, and personally I have every reason to believe them true. It is worth while being a candidate just to call out such an expression. However, he's not a prophet nor the son of a prophet, and his prediction that Thursday would be a poor day to solicit for subscribers in the "Loop" because everybody would be at the picnic was not realized. Just read in the next paragraph how rapidly I gathered them in.

First, was R. M. Smith of Centre Hill. Then Martin Bottorf of Siglerville, Mifflin county, was as easy as to gather blackberries last month. His excellent sister, Mrs. Eliza Treaster, came to the door to see the fun and lo, and behold, I had her. Circling round the hill, I met and persuaded S. C. Colyer of Tusseyville to take the paper. Mrs. Miller told me to send it to her son Elmer, and through the kindness of these good people Arthur Lee, the school teacher, was also added. Coming around by the long, rambling store room at Colyer, I met Samuel F. Reeder, who told me that he lived three miles back in the mountain. He is quite a large man physically, and he must be agreeable in proportion, as he not only took the paper but also said, "Come to see me some time and stay all night as I like company. It will be gratis, de bonis non, cum testamento annexo." "With pleasure," I replied. After adding J. W. Weaver of Colyer, I invaded the neat little home of Mrs. Susan Long who took the paper and insisted that I should dine. She further informed me that she expected Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gehret of Bellefonte to drive over there that evening after leaving the picnic.

Jacob E. Bitner was the next subscriber, he being but a lad whose name was given me by his father, the two being together in the clover field. I soon reached Potters Mills and added Miss Lizzie Faust, then quite quickly Henry Royer subscribed and finally F. Newman, an aged gentleman who makes his home with the McCormick family on the farm He told me that his principal attraction there was the pure and healthful mountain water.

My objective point for the night was the home of Samuel Bitner, who did not turn me off, but instead they opened their arms and a place at the table and also kindled a fire in the room for our comfort during the evening. And there was night with its quiet repose and then the light of Friday morning.

There are two principal roads between Potters Mills and Spring Mills, and the entire distance and all the space between is thickly populated like one continuous village. I did not have opportunity to interview one third of the people, consequently could do as well if I should traverse that way again. As it was I got David E. Hennigh, W. T. McClellan, who is the village blacksmith, and M. J. Barger. These three live at Beech, a post office mid-way between the two places. When I reached Spring Mills T. C. Kenly and John T. Graden took the paper and I had a pleasant and profitable meeting with W. B. Bitner, Hon. Wm. M. Allison, and O. T. Corman, the merchant, also with W. P. Alexander, the miller.

It seems to be an incomprehensible outrage that the authorities do not rebuild the Sinking Creek bridge at Spring Mills. The absence of the bridge (there being only a dangerous looking foot bridge across the stream) must work great damage to O. T. Corman as it shuts off the principal means of approach to his store and would seem to constitute a very good cause for the recovery of damages. Hurry up; don't be a clam, but get a hustle on and show that you are alive.

Mr. Swartz, the merchant at Tusseyville, called my attention to the constantly increasing growth of the weed known as the wild carrot, which is literally covering many fields. As a weed he considers it more obnoxious than the Canada thistle and believes that similar legislation should be enacted to exterminate it as that concerning the Canada thistle, which subject I cordially recommend to the consideration of the next members of the Legislature from Centre county, Messrs. Strohm and Schoonover.

NEWTON S. BAILEY.

—We had the pleasure Friday of becoming acquainted with Hon. James C. Quiggle of Clinton County who a few years ago represented that County in the House of Representatives at Harrisburg and was a colleague of Hon. James Schofield. Mr. Quiggle has just placed two of his sons at the State College, after first investigating the merits or advantages of similar institutions throughout the state. He informed us that in his opinion there is no College in the country equal in many respects in its facilities for giving a scientific course of instructions to "State."

Large Nut Crop Promised.

The chestnut crop in this part of the state will be very large this year, and according to experts the nuts will be well developed and free from worms. Abundant moisture, cool nights and slow development tend to make chestnuts fat and sweet and the same weather conditions are favorable to the full development of walnuts, hazel nuts, hickory nuts and butter nuts.

Death of a Retired Farmer.

Henry Whiteleather, a retired farmer who formerly lived at Jacksonville, Centre county, died Friday afternoon at his home on West Third street, aged 61 years. Three sons and six daughters survive him. Mr. Whiteleather moved to this city last spring. On Monday evening he was stricken with paralysis.—Lock Haven Express.

On Tuesday, Sept. 9th, at the home of the bride, Rev. G. F. Boggs united in marriage Mr. Adam Schroyer, of Milesburg and Miss May Bryan, of Roland. Mr. W. J. Kodol Digests what you Eat

Dyspepsia Cure

People once thought that the only way to cure indigestion was to stop eating. The trouble with such treatment is, that to stop eating is to stop living. KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE has changed the whole method of treating this complaint. It contains all the natural digestive fluids and digests all you eat without aid from the stomach, so you can eat all the good food you want and be cured of your trouble at the same time.

"I have been troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia for several years and often sat down to eat but had to give it up after eating only two bites. I used two bottles of KODOL DYSPEPSIA CURE and am alright to-day. Can now eat anything I want. W. L. Easton, Audubon, Iowa."

It can't help but do you good

Prepared by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago. The $1. bottle contains 2½ times the 50c. size.

When you suffer from biliousness or constipation, use the famous little liver pills known as DeWitt's Little EARLY RISERS. They never gripe.

I can examine your eyes at your home, by appointment, without extra charge.

If you need me at your home drop me a line in care of Garman Honse.

Hundreds are going blind daily, from the need of the proper prescribed glasses and from delaying attention to the eyes from time to time. Nothing will destroy your eyesight quicker than cheap glasses or glasses not properly fitted to your eyes.

Prof. Angel, in the short time he has been visiting this section, has met with marked success. Scores of leading citizens of this community have found relief from his treatment. It is not necessary to travel to Eastern cities for treatment when you can consult an eminent oculist at home.

EDITORIAL.

THE BELLEFONTE "REPUBLICAN" FOR 25 CENTS.

In order to place the REPUBLICAN, during the coming campaign, in as many homes as possible, we have decided to make the following liberal offer, On receipt of 25 cents, we will mail the REPUBLICAN (weekly) to new subscribers, until after the election in November. As the campaign promises to be decidedly exciting and interesting, persons wishing to keep themselves informed on the political situation, should avail themselves of this generous offer. The REPUBLICAN intends taking a leading and decided stand during the campaign, and we promise interesting reading to its subscribers.

WHEN the democratic politicians try to persuade the poor laboring man that a vote for Pattison will improve his condition, if that man is true to himself and his family, he will promptly reply, some other time, not now.

IF the democratic manufacturer and mechanic who are so bigoted and narrow in their views would take time, and, without prejudice, compare the prosperous conditions that prevail today, with the disasterous panic that existed when President McKinley was elected, how many of them would be willing, by voting the democratic ticket, to take the chance of having a repetition of those dark days.

BELLEFONTE has two furnaces running day and night, and working to their utmost capacity, with their products sold ahead for six months, at the highest prices pig metal was ever known to bring, and still in the face of all this, the democrats are trying to persuade the men employed at these establishments, to vote for Mr. Pattison, just as if they would forget that when Mr. Pattison was governor the last term, pig iron could scarcely be sold at any price, and Valentine Iron Company had thousands of tons stored in their yard because purchasers for it could not be found. These men vote for a change? Well hardly.

JUDGE PENNYPACKER AT OUR COUNTY FAIR.

Mass Meeting in the Court House, Thursday, October 2nd.

Judge Pennypacker and the entire State ticket and prominent speakers of national reputation, together with the candidates of the Republican County ticket, will be in Bellefonte on Thursday, October 2nd. In the afternoon they will be at the Fair Grounds and occupy a large Headquarters tent where they will be glad to meet everyone, and in the evening a Mass Meeting will be held in the Court House, where speeches will be delivered on National, State and Local issues by distinguished persons.

This will be the last Republican Rally of the campaign in Bellefonte, and we call upon all good, true and loyal Republicans to turn out and make this occasion the greatest political event in the history of Centre County. Special trains will be run on all the railroads to enable those who stay for the night meeting to reach home that day. The schedule of these trains is published in another column of this paper.

CENTRE COUNTY FOR PATTON.

The democrats have given up all hope of electing their candidate, Mr. Pattison, and are now making strenuous efforts to capture the Legislature at Harrisburg, in order to elect the U. S. Senator to succeed Mr. Penrose. In this county they are circulating the report that Governor Hastings, John P. Harris, Esq., and other Republican leaders are opposing the election of A. E. Patton to the State Senate, and that at the proper time word will be sent out to vote for Mr. Heinle. We wish emphatically to make a strong denial of any such reports. Gov. Hastings and his friends will not oppose Mr. Patton, but will vote for him, and do all in their power to have him elected. The most friendly relations exist between Gov. Hastings and Mr. Patton, and when the vote is counted that gentleman will discover that Centre County has been faithful to him.

Why should not the Republicans of this county most earnestly support Mr. Patton? He is the peer of his opponent in every particular and eminently qualified by education, and business capacity to represent this District in an acceptable manner. He is also largely interested in the material prosperity of our community for he has large manufacturing and mining properties, which are a benefit to thousands of persons living within the scope of the three counties he will represent. So if any one approaches you with the story that Governor Hastings and his friends are not in full sympathy with his candidacy, state us as authority, that they are mistaken for we have it from Governor Hastings himself, that he will support and aid in the election of Mr. Patton, and not only Mr. Patton, but the entire ticket from Judge Pennypacker down.

A CANDIDATE NOT TO BE ASHAMED OF.

It is a fact worthy of notice that not a Democratic newspaper in the district has advanced one reason why Hon. S. R. Dresser should not be sent to Congress, except that he is a Republican. It is gratifying to the voters to have a candidate who has not to be on the defensive but can make an aggressive campaign. We have no apology to make for Mr. Dresser in his life as a business man or private citizen, he is a man worthy of the support of all.

THE democratic papers are making much ado "about the ills of Pennsylvania." Our great state may have ills but not of the character that could be corrected by democratic treatment. It is an ill omen for democratic success, to have every furnace, rolling mill and manufacturing establishment, within the borders of this great Commonwealth, crowded with orders, and unable to supply the demand. No wonder they think that Pennsylvania has ills to complain of.

REPUBLICAN vs DEMOCRATIC HOSPITALITY.

The "Watchman" last week tried to ridicule and belittle the visit of Judge Pennypacker and party to the Grange Picnic, and took occasion to refer to Governor Hastings in a most contemptible manner. It certainly knows that Gov. Hastings is not a candidate for office, but was at the picnic as a republican to welcome our Candidate for Governor, to Centre County, which he did in a graceful manner, afterwards inviting the distinguished visitors to his home for dinner and tendering them a reception in the evening.

What other citizen in Bellefonte would have done as much? What other man would have gone to the trouble and expense of showing this courtesy to the representatives of his party? Was any effort made by the Democrats to show marked attention to their candidate? Was he invited to Bellefonte and entertained by any of his political followers? Oh no! Bellefonte Democrats are not built that way. They were satisfied to pay their fifty-five cents car fare per head to go to Centre Hall, but that was the extent of their devotion to the party and its leader.

The car bearing Mr. Pattison stood on the side track in Bellefonte for fully half an hour on his way from Centre Hall and not one man entered it to greet him, nor did he show himself during all that time. He was not one hundred feet away from Hon. P. Gray Meek's residence, with its beautiful grounds and surroundings, but there was no one to invite him to spend the time in that hospitable home. This would have cost something in the way of trouble and possibly inconvenience, but mark our words if Pattison should be elected, among the first in the hoard of office seekers would be Hon. P. Gray pressing his claims for consideration.

young people. They want to see something of the outside world. So the quiet home life of the farm is exchanged for the din of manufacturing centres and the excitement of the marts of trade. While this has been true of the young people, the fault does not lie entirely with them. The tempting inducements held out to farmers to settle in the far west, have influenced many of maturer years to cast their lot in that Eldorado of farm life. Unfortunately, these same influences have wrought like results among nearly all our country churches.

WEST PENN'S VALLEY CHURCH.

This congregation first worshipped in a log Schoolhouse near the head of Cedar creek in Harris twp. General James Potter gave ten acres of ground for a church and burial purposes near Linden Hall. Logs were hewn and hauled for a church at this point, but it never was built. The graveyard alone remains to indicate where the Cedar Creek or Stanford's church was begun, but never completed. It is situated on the hillside a few rods southeast of the present residence of Mr. George Swab. Here repose the remains of the second wife of General James Potter, who died in 1792. It has long since been abandoned as a place of burial. Instead of building on Cedar creek, the congregation resolved to build farther west on the Slab Cabin branch of Spring creek, about one mile northwest of the present village of Lemont. Here they erected a log building in 1794. In this building, unfinished, without pews, pulpit, floor, ceiling, or windows, they worshipped for sometime, being unable to complete it. It was finally finished in April, 1802. It was repaired and enlarged in 1832. It was destroyed by fire on the 18th of April, 1847, about one year after Dr. Hamill became pastor. It was replaced by a plain frame structure about a year after the fire. In this house the congregation worshipped for about twenty-five years. It was then decided to change the location to Lemont, and the present neat and substantial stone structure was built there, and entered free of debt January 7, 1872.

Cedar Creek was abandoned as a place of preaching soon after the first church on Slab Cabin Branch was erected. The congregation has ever since been known on the roll of Presbytery as the Spring Creek church.

The church at State College is a branch from this congregation, and a church was erected there, and dedicated March 18, 1888. A chapel was also built at Boalsburg in 1892, for the convenience of the members of the Spring Creek church residing in that vicinity.

Although, as has been stated, Warriors Mark and Half Moon were originally part of the Penn's Valley congregation, yet they soon made other connections So their subsequent history does not concern us at this time.

SPRING MILLS AND AARONSBURG.

The history of Presbyterianism in Penn's Valley would be incomplete without a reference to these churches. Previous to the division of the Presbyterian church into Old School and New School by the disruption of 1837, these churches were part of the Sinking Creek congregation, and worshipped with it. Sometime after the division of the church, they connected themselves with the New School branch. Their separation from the mother church was perhaps due more to inadequate church privileges, than to any very serious doctrinal differences. In 1842 they erected the neat and attractive building still standing at Spring Mills. They owned a third interest in the German Reformed Church building at Aaronsburg, and worshipped in it for many years. They also had a small church at Hublersburg. The Ruling Elders of these churches fifty years ago were Dr. Charles Coburn, Peter Wilson, Thomas Hutchinson and Thomas Huston. The most prominent male members and adherents were James Duncan, James P. Coburn, Wm. Cook Duncan, John Foster, Dr R. F. Van-Valzah, David Duncan, Robert Cook, Samuel Woods, Anthony Carner and John Divens.

After the reunion of the Old and New School churches in 1869, these churches were again united with the Sinking Creek church into one pastoral charge, and continue so to this day.

The church at Hublersburg has been abandoned. I am indebted to Col. James P. Coburn for the main facts in this history of the Spring Mills and Aaronsburg churches.

I have thus endeavored, Mr. Editor, to present a brief history of the Presbyterian church in Penn's Valley. I have not tried to be original, but have gathered facts wherever I could find them. I am very largely indebted to the Centennial History of the Presbytery, having in some instances copied even the language of its articles.

Please accept thanks for all your kindness and courtesy, and the favor of your columns.

Yours Truly,
THOS. C. VAN TRIES.

It is the intention of the writer to prepare and have published a sketch of the different pastors of these churches.

Americans are known as a dyspeptic people. The extent of this disease may be inferred from the multitude of so called "medicines" offered as a remedy. They are often in tablet form and have no value except as palliatives of the immediate effects of dyspepsia. The man who used them may feel better but is surely getting worse. They do not touch the real cause of the disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a medicine specially prepared to cure diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not made to give temporary relief but to effect permanent cure. In ninety-eight cases out of every hundred it cures perfectly and permanently.

It has cost Dr. Pierce $25,000 to give away in the last year the copies of his People's Common Sense Medical Adviser which have been applied for. This book of 1008 pages is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE CASE OF TENONI

BY MARVIN DANA

Copyright, 1901, by Marvin Dana

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon of March 28 a woman entered the hall of the Grand hotel, New York city. She was evidently young, hardly more than a girl, with a face rather too pale, but made charming by regular features and large dark eyes.

She walked without any hesitation to the office and inquired:

"Is Senor Tenoni in?"

The clerk struck a bell and shouted, "Front!"

The end boy of the row seated on a bench started up and presented himself before the clerk with a "Yes, sir."

"Show this lady to No. 18."

"Oh, no," exclaimed the visitor. "I know where Senor Tenoni's room is. But would you be so kind as to do me a great favor?" she queried.

"With pleasure. I shall be very pleased to do anything I can for you."

"Please take this letter." With the words she held out an envolope.

"Why, it's addressed to me!"

"Yes; it is addressed to you."

"But I did not know I knew you—that is, I didn't know you knew me," cried the astonished man.

"No, I suppose not," answered the girl, with some embarrassment. Then she added: "But you must promise not to open it for at least half an hour. Will you give me your word?"

"Why, yes, of course," the clerk answered, with as much grace of manner as one so puzzled could command.

The mysterious visitor turned away and went slowly down the corridor. The clerk stared after her and saw her pause and knock at No. 18. She waited a moment, apparently for an answer, then opened the door and entered. When the door had closed behind her, he turned to a careful contemplation of the letter, which was addressed in dainty handwriting:

"John Briggs, Esq., Grand Hotel."

The envelope could properly be opened at half past 3. At a quarter past 3 the door of No. 18 opened, but it was Tenoni who appeared. He was alone and hastily left the hotel without a word to any one.

"Now, that's funny," meditated the clerk. "But he'll be back soon, I suppose."

But the moments dragged on, and Tenoni did not return.

"This is a curious business," the clerk mused, and then, it being one minute of half past 3, he opened the letter. It ran as follows:

Dear Mr. Briggs—Circumstances I must not reveal have surrounded me with perils. I must see Senor Tenoni today, but he is a desperate man. If you should hear me shriek, come to my help, and if I do not come out of his room by 4 o'clock have a search made for me. I trust my life to you, for I have heard of your noble character from a mutual friend. When we next meet, all will be made clear to you. JULIA CRAMER.

Mr. Briggs turned pale as he read this extraordinary document.

In a few minutes the whole hotel was in an uproar. Repeated knockings at No. 18 gained no response. Then the door was tried and found to be locked. Ultimately the police were summoned, the door was beaten open, and a search was made. Nobody was found, nor was there any trace of the woman who, according to the evidence of eyewitnesses, clerks, bellboys and porter, had entered there at 3 o'clock, but had never come out.

When Tenoni was arraigned, court, jury, bar and public were much affected by the charms of the victim as set forth by the clerk, the porter and the bellboys. The most strenuous efforts on the part of the police failed to discover any other person answering to the name or description of Julia Cramer. It was hoped that Tenoni would confess and explain the singular means by which he had managed to dispose of the body. But Tenoni seemed possessed of dauntless effrontery and insisted that he had never known any person named Julia Cramer.

When the accused had been sworn, the following questions and answers were given:

"Were you in your room at the Grand hotel at the time when, as stated by the witnesses who preceded you, this person entered the hotel and asked for you?"

"I was not."

This answer caused much surprise and rather increased the general feeling of the prisoner's guilt, since a number of witnesses had testified to having seen him leave the room a few minutes later.

"Did you have any visitor in your room at the hotel on the day in question?"

"I did not."

A murmur of disapprobation arose, but ceased when the counsel passed to the clerk of the court a small parcel which had been lying on the table before him.

"I wish to offer in evidence the contents of this parcel."

The articles were passed to the judge, who examined them curiously. The counsel then asked that they should be examined by the prisoner, who, however, hardly glanced at them, but left them lying in his lap.

Counsel for the defense requested that Mr. Briggs should be recalled. Then he asked:

"You have a very clear remembrance of the appearance of this girl?"

"Sir," Mr. Griggs replied with emotion, "her form and face are forever enshrined in my heart."

"Very good," quoth the counsel. "Now tell me, if you please, what sort of a gown she wore."

"It was a blue skirt with white stripes, and a blouse of the same sort."

"And what sort of hair did she have?"

"Very dark, almost black, and lots of it, curling all around her face."

"And her hat?"

"It was just an ordinary straw sailor with a blue and white ribbon."

"Would you know her again if you saw her?"

"Would I!" There was keen reproach in the tone of the exclamation. "I would know her in the heart of Africa!"

"You need hardly go that far to see her," retorted the counsel with a smile.

At the same moment the prisoner made a quick movement that attracted the attention of the court and caused the policeman guarding him to spring forward. But the latter stopped short, his eyes dilated with amazement, and his surprise was shared by every one whose eyes were turned on the dock.

Only Mr. Briggs had not turned his head, but now the counsel said to him:

"Just look, Mr. Briggs, and tell me if you see any one in the courtroom who reminds you of Miss Cramer."

The witness shook his head despondently, but raised his eyes. They fell full on a figure in a blue and white gown, on a sailor hat circled with a blue and white band, on a dainty face lighted by lustrous dark eyes that seemed to pierce to the bottom of Mr. Briggs' heart. He gasped and cried:

"It's she!"

"And all the bellboys and the porter echoed his cry, "It's she!"

There was silence for a minute in the courtroom, all eyes fixed on the mysterious woman, who stood, lovely and smiling, in the dock. Then in a flash the woman vanished, and Tenoni stood in her place—Tenoni, who tossed to his counsel the gown and hat and wig. That learned gentleman at once addressed the court:

"I shall, with the court's permission, ask a few questions of the prisoner that will, I think, effectually clear up this mystery.

"What is your profession?"

"I am a quick change artist."

"Who wrote the note read by Mr. Briggs?"

"I did."

"Who was the person known as Julia Cramer?"

"It was I."

"What was your object in the deception?"

"I wished to play a practical joke that would set New York talking about me. I came here to get an engagement. I knew the fact that I was unknown in this country would prevent my getting a big salary, so I hit on this plan to get talked about."

"And you think you have succeeded?"

"I shall know when I am offered an engagement."

There was talk of committing Tenoni for contempt of court, but it came to nothing. Instead the whole country laughed, and all New York went to marvel at the lightning changes of this ingenious artist, whose salary was $300 weekly.

What Carlyle Wrote of Tennyson.

Tennyson in his prime was thus described by Thomas Carlyle to Ralph Waldo Emerson on Aug. 5, 1844: "One of the finest looking men in the world. A great shock of rough, dusty dark hair; bright, laughing, hazel eyes; massive aquiline face—most massive, yet most delicate, of sallow brown complexion, almost Indian looking; clothes cynically loose, free and easy; smokes infinite tobacco. His voice is musically metallic, fit for loud laughter and piercing wail and all that may lie between; speech and speculation free and plenteous. I do not meet in these late decades such company over a pipe."

When the Cat Was Sacred.

In the middle ages brute animals formed as prominent a part in the devotional ceremonies of the time as they had in the old religion of Egypt. The cat Ælurus was embalmed after death and buried in the city of Bubastis because, according to Herodotus, Diana Bubastis, the chief diety of the place, was said to have transformed herself into a cat when the gods fled into Egypt.

Watch Owner's Pride.

"Then you do not regard him as trustworthy?"

"I should not go so far as to say he is not trustworthy, but he is the kind of man who will set his watch at 11:30 o'clock and then call your attention to the manner in which it keeps time when the 12 o'clock whistle blows."—Washington Star.

It Was Up.

There was a newly wedded pair whose honeymoon trip took them across the Atlantic. The bride had been something of a yachtswoman and was not affected by the swell, but her mate was a bad sailor and took to the rail late on the first day out. She did what she could to comfort him, but he was difficult. She thought a touch of the romantic might get him out of his mood, so she tried this:

"The moon is up; isn't it, darling?"

"Yes," he said languidly—"that is, if I swallowed it."—Philadelphia Times.

A Cheerful Proposal.

A Scottish beadle one day led the manse housemaid to the churchyard and, pointing with his finger, stammered:

"My folk lie there, Jenny. Wad ye like to lie there too?"

It was his way of popping the question.

A GREAT PEACH CROP

THAT WHICH GREW AROUND NEW YORK IN THE YEAR 1679.

Apparently the Luscious Fruit Was More Abundant on Manhattan Island Than Anything Else Except Bad Barbados Rum.

Books of travel usually contain a vast amount of matter that is unimportant and a good deal that is untrue, besides not a little that is uninteresting, and the old travelers who wrote about their voyages to New York furnished few exceptions to the rule.

Tantalizing, therefore, is the diary of an observer who visited these shores in 1679; who had a reportorial instinct for the important, the true and the interesting; whose journeys covered the entire territory now known as the Greater New York; who wrote fully and graphically of all he saw, and whose observations have all come down to us, with the exception of some thirty pages describing New York city at the time of his visit. Exactly that which would now be most valuable is lost; but, from what remains, we can learn a good deal about the New York of those days.

Jaspar Dankers is the writer whose impressions of New York have thus been lost to the world, and in what has been preserved of his writings the chief thing that forces its attention upon the reader is the magnitude of the peach crop in these parts during the year of his visit. He was a religious enthusiast, the leader of the Labadists, a sect that flourished briefly on three continents toward the close of the seventeenth century, and his voyage companion was a minister of the same sect.

But there is little of this in his diary against a great deal of what they ate and drank, and on occasions when they went to the little church in the fort where the custom house is now the fact is mentioned with some apologies, one service being attended "in order to avoid scandal and for other reasons" and others because "my companion is endeavoring to learn the language."

But on the very day of their arrival in New York, Sept. 23, 1679, we begin to hear of the eatables and drinkables, especially the peaches.

"He first took us to the house of one of his friends, who welcomed him and us and offered us some of the fruit of the country, very fine peaches and full grown apples, which filled our hearts with thankfulness to God. This fruit was exceedingly fair and good and pleasant to the taste, much better than that in Holland or elsewhere, though I believe our long fasting and craving for food made it so agreeable. After taking a glass of madeira we proceeded. As we walked along we saw in different gardens trees full of apples of various kinds and so laden with peaches and other fruit that one might doubt whether there were more leaves or fruit on them. I have never seen in Europe in the best seasons such an overflowing abundance. When we finished our tour and had given our guides several letters to deliver, we returned to his father-in-law's. He regaled us in the evening with milk, which refreshed us much. We had so many peaches set before us that we were timid about eating them, though we experienced no ill effects from them."

And the next day, Sunday, the record opens with this:

"I was surprised on waking to find my comrade had already dressed himself and breakfasted upon peaches."

So it went every day. Toward the end of the week they crossed the ferry (for less than half a cent apiece) to Long Island, where the people made them "very welcome, sharing with us bountifully whatever they had, whether it was milk, cider, fruit or tobacco, and especially, first and most of all, miserable rum, which had been brought from Barbados and which is called by the Dutch 'kill-devil.' These people are very fond of it, and most of them extravagantly so, although it is very dear and has a bad taste."

But on Long Island, as elsewhere, the peaches were as good as the rum was bad.

"It is impossible to tell how many peach trees we passed, all laden with fruit to breaking down and many of them actually broken down. We came to a place surrounded with such trees from which so many had fallen off that the ground could not be discerned and you could not put your foot down without trampling them, and notwithstanding such large quantities had fallen off the trees still were as full as they could bear. The hogs and other animals mostly feed on them."

The peaches in Harlem were as plentiful and still more delicious. When they went up to the north end of Manhattan island, we find this notice:

"Before we left (Harlem) we did not omit supplying ourselves with peaches, which grew in an orchard along the road. The whole ground was covered with them and with apples, lying upon the new grain with which the orchard was planted. The peaches were the most delicious we had yet eaten."

But they need not have taken the precaution mentioned, for even after crossing Spuyten Duyvil they found more peaches than ever.

"We came to a road which was entirely covered with peaches. We asked the boy why they left them lie there and did not let the hogs eat them. He answered: 'We do not know what to do with them, there are so many. The hogs are satiated with them and will not eat any more.' From this we may judge of the quantity of them."—H. H. N. in New York Mail and Express.

Mixed Eggs.

Professor Edwin Ray Lankester was sitting in his office in the Natural History museum, London, when he was visited by an elderly woman, evidently from the country, who carried a parcel which she handled with the most exaggerated care. She was in a state of great excitement and exclaimed:

"I've got two of 'em."

"Two of what?" inquired the professor.

"Two 'awks' eggs," replied the woman. "I'm told they're worth a thousand pounds apiece."

The professor, much interested, looked at the eggs. "These are not auks' eggs," he said.

"They are 'awks' eggs," said his visitor. "My son Joe found 'em."

A light dawned on the naturalist. "The kind of eggs which are so valuable," he remarked gently, "are the eggs of an extinct bird called the auk—a-u-k."

"Oh, hauk!" said the woman. "I'll pay out that 'Enry 'Obhouse as told me it was 'awks' eggs as was wanted."

And she went away."

A Clever Pickpocket.

In Paris two police officers recently got upon the track of a pickpocket. They surprised him in the act at the omnibus bureau and followed him in hot pursuit. He was a thin, poorly clad young fellow. In the Rue Rochechonaut, however, he suddenly disappeared. Judging that he had slipped into one of the houses they set themselves to watch for his reappearance. The thief in the meantime had entered a bathing establishment, and after a refreshing bath entered the box of another bather and calmly clothed himself in the smart suit he found there, then passed proudly and peacefully out before the very eyes of his pursuers. The climax of humor came when the other bather, arrayed in the rags of the pickpocket, was grabbed by the officers of the law at the door and dragged off to the station house. With some difficulty the situation was explained; but the pickpocket is still laughing.

Make the Most of Your Gifts.

Personality has done wonders with both heredity and environment. It has made moderate gifts accomplish marvelous things. Men with moderate gifts, by patient and persistent application have put to shame the splendidly equipped, who have indolently frittered away their patrimony. Out of the most untoward surroundings men have found their way to the grandest achievements. The boy from the log cabin has outstripped the boy from the palace. The barefooted boy has outstripped the boy of pampered indulgence. The plodder has outstripped the genius. The tortoise has passed the hare. Whether a man be richly endowed or moderately endowed, his success will depend on the use he makes of what God has given him.—Independent.

Spoke From Experience.

A man who tries to uphold all his statements with the prop of personal experience is pretty sure, sooner or later, to find himself in difficulties.

"What kind of posts should you say I'd better have for my piazza?" asked a summer resident of the oracle of Bushville. "Cedar?"

"No," was the instant reply; "not 'less you want to pay for poor stuff. Git pine. T'ine will last you a hundred years."

"Are you sure?" asked the summer resident doubtfully.

"Sure!" echoed the oracle. "I never state a thing without I can prove it. I've tried 'em both. Tried 'em twice on my south porch, I tell you!"

Ways of the Statesmen.

Many years ago, when England was engaged in foreign complications, the first lord of the admiralty sent Admiral Codrington a dispatch which was most peaceful as far as it appeared before the public. He told him not to take his ships into action and so forth, but in a corner he wrote this short private note, "Go it, Ned!" And Codrington went to Navarino and smashed up the Turkish fleet.

Same Old Story.

"Wonder why the grizzly bear isn't exhibiting himself today?" said the African lion gently.

"He's laid up. The tortoise bit him," replied the lioness.

Not Always Hard.

"Yes, he swindled us," said one of the victims, "and we considered him such a perfect gentleman; he had such a gentle, suave way about him."

"Proving," remarked the other, "that the way of the transgressor is sometimes soft."—Catholic Standard and Times.

White Men In Slavery.

Slavery is so connected in the popular mind with the dusky hue of the African that it seems hard to believe that only about 100 years ago white men could be sold into slavery in New York. It arose through applying the redemption idea to poor immigrants and obtained equally in all the countries of the United Kingdom. A man in England, wishing to come to America, would go to the correspondent of some American house and for a certain sum of money sell himself for a period of from one to three years, as the case might be. Taking the money so raised, he would pay his passage and that of his family to this country. Immediately upon his arrival in New York his "time" would be put up at auction and himself sold to work for the stipulated period before he could be considered a free man. Many men who afterward rose to great prominence came to this country under these distressing conditions.

To Match His Match.

An Englishman was in a smoking compartment of a city train a little while back, and at a certain station a German entered the carriage and took his seat opposite him. When the train had started, the foreigner, noticing the other's cigar, inquired if he could give him one.

The Englishman, astonished at the request, reluctantly pulled out his case and saw with disgust the other select the best he could find and take a match from his pocket and light it. After taking a few puffs with evident enjoyment, the German, beaming at his companion through his spectacles, affably continued:

"I vould not haf droubled you, but I had a match in mein boggit und I did not know vat to do mit it."—Chums.

A Severe Critic.

A self conscious and egotistical young clergyman was "supplying" the pulpit of a country church. After the service, says the New York Evening Post, he asked one of the deacons, a grizzled, plain spoken man, what he thought of "this morning's effort."

"Waal," answered the old man slowly, "I'll tell ye; I'll tell ye in a kind o' parable. It reminded me of Sim Peck's fust deer hunt, when he was green. He follered the deer's tracks all right, but he follered 'em all day in the wrong direction."

Baring Feet at Worship.

The India Hindoos and Mussulmans alike wear both sandals and shoes (slippers) and the latter boots also. The sandal (the word is Persian) was evidently the original covering for the feet over all southern and eastern Asia, while the shoe was probably introduced into India by the Persians, Afghans and Mo(n)gols, together with the "tip tilted" (Hittite and Etruscan) boot.

Both are usually made in India of leather, but never of pigskin, and, while the shoes are always colored red or yellow, the boots are generally brightly particolored, both among the upper classes being also richly embroidered in gold and silver and variegated silk thread and with bangles, bugles and seed pearls after the manner of the ancient Persian boots represented on Greek vases.

But, of however rare and costly elaboration, the invariable rule is to remove them after entering a private house just when stepping on to the mat or carpet on which the visitor takes his seat. They must be cast off, the right boot or shoe first, before the worshiper enters a temple or mosque, and it is still regarded as an absolute profanation to attempt to enter either fully shod.—London Athenæum.

She Made Herself Understood.

She was young and innocent looking and coy and shy, and the half dozen men among the passengers on a Chicago street car the other day caught themselves looking at her more than once and almost wishing they had such a daughter. Presently another girl got in, and the two exchanged exclamations of surprise. Two minutes later the last comer was saying loud enough to be heard all over the car:

"Dear me, Madge, but your new hat is a stunner!"

"Yes? Do you like it?"

"It's perfectly splendid. It must have cost at least $5."

"Five dollars!" echoed the coy and shy and innocent. "Why, my old 'gov' coughed up fourteen bones for this hat, and we got $6 off at that!"

A Slim Outlook.

"I think your papa, dear Rosa, has been making inquiries about me."

"What has he told you?"

"Nothing. But he offered me a cigar, and it was simply frightful!"—Fliegende Blatter.

THE GRANGER'S PICNIC.

Thursday Was Democratic Day at Centre Hall.

PATTISON AND GUTRIE WERE THERE

About Six Thousand People Were Present to Hear the Issues Discussed—An Open Air Meeting.

THE GRANGERS HAD A GOOD WEEK

Thursday was Democratic Day at the Granger's picnic at Grange Park, Centre Hall and about six thousand people assembled to meet Gov. Pattison and his campaigning party and enjoy a day's outing at the park. The candidates and their friends left Harrisburg on a special Pullman sleeper, which they will occupy during the rest of their tour through the state. They were joined at the State capital by State chairman W. T. Creasy, Senator Herbst, of Berks, and H. E Spyker, of Union, members of the State committee, who will manage the trip.

At Coburn, fifteen miles from Bellefonte, the Pattison party were met by a committee headed by Col. John A. Woodward and composed as follows: John J. Bower, Senator W. C. Heinle, Capt. H. S. Taylor, Calvin M. Bower, James Schofield, L. A. Schaeffer, J. C. Meyer, A. C. Mingle, P. Gray Meek, J. Kennedy Johnston, G. H. Lyman, John Q. Miles, Wm. Kepler, Henry Wetzel, John Spangler, S. D. Gettig, J. D. Miller, W. T. Speer, W. F. Smith, Thomas Riley, A. E. Humpton and J. C. Rowe.

The grange committee was composed as follows: Col. James F. Weaver, James A. Keller, John Dauberman, John Arney and Geo. Goodhart.

The special car was sidetracked alongside the picnic grounds, and Messrs. Pattison and Guthrie were escorted to the tent used as a Democratic headquarters, where they were given a reception.

They stood there shaking hands for two hours, after which they were taken to the stand erected for speakers outside the auditorium, which was surrounded by farmers. Colonel James F. Weaver presided, and addresses were made by ex-Governor Pattison, George W. Guthrie, Major Moses Veale, State Chairman Creasy, Senator Herbst and Representative Mayne. The last two spoke in Pennsylvania Dutch.

Thursday morning the Grangers held a meeting in the auditorium at which addresses were made by Hon. J. T. Ailman, state secretary of the Grange; Hon. T. P. Ryder, of Erie, and others. The Granger's picnic this year has been the most succesful ever held and the picnic committee are congratulating themselves on that fact.

Hon. James A. Beaver as Juror.

Ex-Governor and Superior Court Judge James A. Beaver is to serve in Pittsburg on the jury drawn for the special term of the United States district court to be held Tuesday, Oct. 7. Judge Beaver returned his summons Wednesday morning, saying he would be on hand when court opened. Once before ex-Governor Beaver served on a jury in the United States court at Pittsburg. It was in 1879, and the jury was one of the most memorable ones ever drawn. On it were several county judges, generals and a congressman. The case was against a large coal company, and for three days the jurors were taken through the mines, clothed in rubber suits to protect them from the dripping water.

Temperance Lecture by Dr. Anna Shaw.

Petrikin Hall was filled Wednesday night to hear Dr. Shaw lecture on temperance, and the audience was delighted by her eloquence and earnest manner in presenting this great question.

Dr. Shaw is no ordinary platform lecturer, but a woman of culture and refinement, and a natural orator. She speaks with great ease and fluency, and is original and convincing.

The cause of temperance would be advanced more permanently and rapidly, were there more Dr. Shaw's to advocate its principals, but unfortunately many who have been brought here by the temperance people are so dogmatic in their utterances as to repel rather than enlist, the sympathies of their hearers, and in many cases have been intemperate in their language towards those who have not openly espoused this worthy cause.

People can be persuaded, but it is an entirely different proposition to coerce them into changing their sentiments or opinions on any subject. Give us more gentle and refined advocates of the Dr. Shaw type, and fewer common place bigots who are intolerant and abusive in their manner and expressions towards those who choose to differ with them.

We are temperance to the core and are in hearty accord and sympathy with every proper movement to promote this most worthy object.

The Tenant Farmer.

The tenant farmer first made his appearance in this country in the census of twenty years ago, when it was found that one-quarter of the farms in the country were worked by tenants, or 25 5 per cent. In the last census—1902—a little over one-third are in the hands of tenants, or 35.3 per cent.

This steady increase is evidently to go on until as large a portion of the land in this country is held by tenants as in any other. A number of farms operated by owners only increased one-quarter in the past twenty years. Those held by cash tenants increased one and one-third, and tenants on shares 81 per cent.

This change has taken place in part in the South, where it marks the advance of the negro, but in the broad line of fertile land which stretches from this State to Iowa there has been for twenty years a steady movement of farmers from the country into the town, where they live on the rent of their farms.

If lighter taxation were to be imposed on land which a man owns and cultivates with his hand than on a tenant farm the State would be doing its share to prevent a change not to its advantage. Every change from the farmer who cultivates the land he owns to the tenant who cultivates the land some one else owns is to the loss of the State, and needs to be prevented by all legitimate means.

State College Foot Ball.

State's foot ball squad has arrived at the college, and the men are hard at work training for the opening game, which will be played at the college next Saturday with Dickinson. Of State's last year team, about all the old men will be back, with the exception of Scholl and Sweet. There is promise of some good material among the Freshmen class, after the opening of college Tuesday. State's full schedule for the season is as follows:

Once Wealthy Now Poor.

Edwards, who built Wilkesbarre's first hotel, and whose wealth was at one time estimated at $1,000,000, Monday applied at the rooms of the United Charity organization in that city for something to eat and clothes to wear. He is 98 years of age and says he is penniless. In his old age the man was made an easy victim of sharpers, who got him to go into all kinds of schemes, none of which paid, but were the means of impoverishing him. THE MAN IN ARMOR

Was no match for the microbe. Giants he might slay but this microscopic organism defied him, and in many a campaign more men were destroyed by camp diseases than by the enemy's sword.

The one way to arm against microbic disease is to keep the blood pure. Impure blood both breeds and feeds disease.

The signs of impure blood are easy to read. Pimples, boils, and eruptions generally proclaim the blood to be impure. Scrofulous scores and swellings, salt-rheum, eczema, etc., are other signs of a corrupt condition of the blood.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and cures diseases caused by the blood's impurity. It cures scrofulous sores, boils, pimples, eczema and other defiling and disfiguring diseases.

"It gives me great pleasure to express my faith in the virtue of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. Ezekiel Floro, of Graytown, Ottawa Co., Ohio. "I suffered everything for two years with humor on my face, which baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. Was at once advised to go to the hospital; was doctored there for three months without success. Came home discouraged. Then began to doctor with a 'chemist.' He also failed to help me. Then I began Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with no faith whatever in it. Did it only to please my wife; but I am happy to tell you that after taking five bottles I am entirely cured."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Philipsburg Weddings.

St. Paul's Episcopal church at Philipsburg was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday evening, when the ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Clerc, D. D., pronouncing Miss Cecilia Baker and Jerry Simler husband and wife. The bride is an estimable young lady and for years has been one of the leading sopranos for the church in which she was married. The groom is the son of Capt. Harry Simler, of Philipsburg, and is located at Johnstown. He served his country in the Philippine war.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Dubbs, of Philipsburg was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday noon, when their eldest daughter, Miss Mollie became the bride of John R. Scruders, of Tyrone. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. B. Wilson. The bridesmaid was Miss Elizabeth Dubbs and the groomsman was Clide Dubbs, sister and brother of the bride. Many useful presents were received and also a sumptuous dinner was served which every one enjoyed. It was a pleasant day for all present. There were guests present from Altoona, Tyrone, Philadelphia, Clearfield and Philipsburg. The happy couple left on the evening train with the good wishes of all present.

Not Doomed for Life.

Fire Clay in Clinton County.

Another large bed of fire clay has been found in Clinton county. During the past three weeks S. G. Davis has been making investigations on lands along Paddy's Run, about two miles from the P. and E. railroad, for the Mill Hall Prospecting company. The clay is in a tract of 150 acres. The vein is five feet thick, three and a half feet of which is hard and one and a half feet is soft. Over the clay is a two and a half foot vein of coal. The clay is pronounced by experts to be of as good quality as any found in this section of the state.

Inquiries are now being made by manufacturers about the clay and it is probable that further developments will be made in the near future.

The Mill Hall Prospecting company has been formed to unearth minerals of this kind and the first discovery has greatly encouraged the members. J. B. Rosser is one of the promoters.

Started Suit to Recover $25,000 Damages.

Mrs. John Martz, the widow of John Martz, the well known engineer who was killed at the Lycoming creek bridge disaster on the Pennsylvania railroad near Williamsport last December, has agreed to a settlement with the railroad company and has received the sum of $3,500. Mrs. Martz and her family now reside at her former home, Lykens.

No settlement has been effected between the company with the widows of the other two men, Mrs. John Horley and Mrs. Fred Glass, who were killed at the same time, although the company has made several offers. Mrs. John Horley has entered suit to recover $25,000 damages.

The College of Music at Freeburg, Pa., is in session with the largest attendance of any previous Summer term, and to continue without vacation until the holidays. BIG TIME AT ERIE.

Opera House Was Crowded With People Anxious to Hear Republicans Talk.

PENNYPACKER AND PENROSE

Made Addresses Which Were Given Close Attention—League of Republican Clubs in Session.

NOMINATIONS IN OTHER STATES

Erie, September 18.—A crowd which filled completely every corner of the large opera house was present at last night's mass meeting to greet ex-Judge Pennypacker and Senator Penrose, the speakers of the evening. They were given close attention and their addresses were loudly applauded.

The opening session of the convention yesterday afternoon was enthusiastic and harmonious and it will finish the work for which it has been called today without any friction. All opposition to the re-election of President Fleitz has been removed. The Philadelphia delegation in caucus yesterday afternoon named the following candidates, all of that city for the office of vice president of the state league:

John R. Wiggins, John McCleary, John W. Durham and William McDonald, W. J. Swope, of Clearfield and Robert Leneisar and Dr. Burchfield, both of Pittsburg, have also been named for the place. The Philadelphia people have recommended John Kelly for re-election as corresponding secretary and J. H. Saw for treasurer. The mammoth campaign ball was finished yesterday afternoon and last night performed its part in the firing of the first formal gun of the campaign. The ball will start on the long trip to Philadelphia before the end of the week.

Connecticut Republicans Nominate.

Hartford, Conn., September 18.—Abram Chamberlain, of Meriden, the present state comptroller, was yesterday nominated by the Connecticut republican convention for governor to succeed Governor George P. McLean, who, on account of ill-health had declined to be a candidate another term. Mr. Chamberlain was opposed for the nomination by W. L. Cleveland, of New Haven, who was defeated on the first ballot, receiving only 158 votes, while Mr. Chamberlain had 343. Resolutions endorsing the administration of President Roosevelt and favoring his nomination for the presidency in 1904 were adopted.

Massachusetts Democrats Nominate.

Boston, September 18.—The democratic convention yesterday nominated William A. Gaston for governor on the first ballot.

Brevities.

The chestnut burrs ought to open now that the frosts have appeared.

The scarcity of hard coal will add no little inconvenience and discomfort to multitudes.

The nights are growing longer, and the light bills will increase as a result.

The merchants hre now busy unpacking and displaying their fall invoices.

The little things that we neglect to do seldom remain little. By and by we shall walk under their shadow.

What men want is not talent, it is purpose; in other words, not the power to achieve, but the will to labor.

A New Swindler.

A new swindler is capturing some of the New York farmers. A man comes around offering a patent wagon tongue. The farmer does not buy, but the agent leaves the tongue to be called for in a few days. Shortly another of the gang comes and sees the tongue, is very favorably impressed with it and offers $400 for it. The farmer thinks he sees his chance to make some money, sends the first man $250 for the right to handle the tongue, and that is the end of the matter. Man No. 2 disappears and seeks new fields to conquer.

A Boy's Wild Ride for Life.

With family around expecting him to die, and a son riding for life, 18 miles, to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, W. H. Brown, of Leesville, Ind., endured death's agonies from asthma, but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him. He writes: "I now sleep soundly every night." Like marvelous cures of consumption, pneumonia, bronchitis, coughs, colds and grip prove its matchless merit for all throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Green's Pharmacy.

Wrecked a Train That He Might Sleep.

J. P. Patton, a brakeman on the Union railroad at Munhall, near Pittsburg, was lodged in jail Tuesday on a charge of deliberately wrecking a freight train that he might secure a chance to sleep. He had been sent ahead to turn a switch. Instead of closing it he threw it wide open and the train plunged almost into the Monongahela river. Not much damage was done. Patton claims he had been working continuously for 36 hours and was not responsible for his deed.

Sober's Chestnut Farm.

Fifteen Thousand Thrifty Young Trees Now Bearing.

A well kept farm is a pretty sight at any time, but when it comes to something out of the ordinary in the farming line, it was left to C. K. Sober, of Irish Valley, well known in Centre county, to figure it out.

Imagine if you can, on a side hill, a grove of fifteen thousand chestnut trees, many of them not taller than four or five feet and each tree loaded down with chestnut burrs. This is the sight that greets the eye when you visit Mr. Sober's chestnut farm. They are all specially cultivated chestnuts and each tree has been grafted. Imagine the work, first, of planting the trees, then again of grafting them. It meant work, and hard work, too, it was a big undertaking, but the genial proprietor is a man of big undertakings and the work was pushed vigorously and completed and the result of his work today is very gratifying to him. He will have a thousand bushels, each burr is said to contain from eight to nine large sweet nuts and judging by the size of the burr they will produce fully that many. "The Sober Chestnut" will soon become a household word for superiority, just as the "Sharpless strawberry" has.

Mr. Sober is very proud of his Chestnut farm and well he may be. It is a grand sight and the yield this year will be something enormous. Beside the chestnut farm he has a large fruit and vegetable farm. Already over one hundred bushels of peaches have been sold from his peach orchard this year.

Another feature of the farm is a race track he is now having constructed which will give great pleasure to him and his many friends. He says he does not expect to make much money but he is making everything so pleasant and inviting on his farm that his many friends may take pleasure in visiting him and enjoying it. He is a most pleasant and affable gentleman.

Central Pennsylvania Synod.

On Wednesday, September 24th, the central Pennsylvania synod of the Lutheran church will convene in St. John's English Lutheran church, at Lock Haven, to continue in session until the Monday following. There will be 100 or more ministers and lay delegates present and a number of the prominent men of the denomination will be in attendance, including secretaries of boards of different departments of the church. Rev. C. T. Aikens, of Pine Grove Mills, is president of the synod. The sessions of the synod will be open to the public and the exercises promise to be interesting.

A Worthless Check.

A stranger successfully worked the worthless check game on Wolf Freedman, the clothing dealer of Sunbury on Wednesday, and swindled him out of $11 worth of goods. The stranger bought a bill of goods to the amount of $18 and fortunately for Freedman, paid $7 in cash. The stranger made a hasty departure from the store and made his escape.

An Old Nurse of Forty Years Experience.

Talking about use of wine in sickness said she never used a wine that had such a pleasing and beneficial effect on her patients as that made by Mr. Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J.

The Coming of the Circus.

The small boy and the small girl, yes, and a great many of larger growth, were at the station early Saturday to welcome Pawnee Bill and witness the interesting operation of unloading from the cars, the horses and paraphernalia belonging to the great show. Many youngsters upon retiring Friday night admonished their parents to be sure to call them early, and this morning of all mornings it was not necessary to repeat the call in order to have a prompt response.

We remember, ever so many years ago, long before the Menagerie or Circus were transported by rail, when the wagons and cages were drawn through the country by horses, it was no hardship to be wakened out of sleep at four o'clock in the morning, and travel, shivering, through the cool, sometimes frosty, air, to meet the caravan three or four miles from town, and accompany it back. We have not forgotten the times we would carry barrels of water and assist the circus men in various ways, to gain admittance to the realms of what we considered wonderland. The memory of those days time cannot efface. We, no doubt, were foolish but the pleasure and enjoyment were real, even now we can see through the dim distance, the fearless bearback ridding, the wonderful acrobats in their deeds of daring and clowns; they don't have clowns in these modern times as we did then. In those days we devoured every song he sang, every word he spoke and would rehearse his sayings and doings for months after he had gone and forgotten us.

We attend the circus now, but not with the same zest or keen enjoyment that we did at that time, but often think it is the same pleasure to the youth of today that it was to us and do not wonder at the excitement the coming of a circus stirs in the breasts of the rising generation.

JOHN C. MILLER

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

—We are glad to know that Miss Jessie Etters, who has been so dangerously ill with appendicitis is gradually recovering.

—We would advise Cashier Jno. P. Harris to try the merits of Kar-Sic on his pet dog. It is a fine remedy for that trouble.

—"Side Tracked" Illustrating the comic side of life on the rail. Catchy music, songs, duets etc. At Garman's opera house this evening.

—The race course at the Fair Ground was never in as good condition as at the present time. Jim Shorter, who has charge of it, undoubtedly understands his business.

—Jacob Girard, of Bloomsburg, aged 78 years, and Mrs. Sarah E. Hilkirt, of Turbotville, aged 62 years, were married Thursday evening. This is Mr. Girard's fifth matrimonial venture.

—Mr. and Mrs. Morris Rine, of South Potter street, are rejoicing over the birth of a bouncing baby boy which happy event occurred Sunday morning. Congratulations are now in order.

—Ambrose Sloteman, the very obliging and efficient deputy to Recorder N. E. Robb, is confined to his home on Willowbank street by a severe attack of illness. His many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

—The Centre County Fair Association have secured Bill Rine, Bellefonte's phenomenal buck dancer and batonist to give exhibition of his skill during the coming week of Fair. Bill is very clever in this line of work and no doubt will win the admiration of all his audience.

—Frederick, the three months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Malone, of Snow Shoe, died Saturday at the home of his parents. The funeral took place Sunday from the residence of his grandparents at Milesburg. Interment in the Curtin cemetery.

—Mr. John Doak, of this place, while working for Benj. Bradley Monday cut a terrible gash in his hand with a hatchet. He was taken to the office of Dr. Harris and it required several stitches to sew up the wound. He is getting along as well as could be expected.

—Henry Lowry is feeling just as happy as if he had been elected twice, and all because that generous bird the "stork" paid his home a visit and left a dear little boy baby, to comfort him if by any chance he should not run quite fast enough to be elected sheriff.

—On Wednesday evening of last week Mr. Joseph Betzendorf and Miss Ida Maligan were married at Hollidaysburg. The bride is the daughter of James Maligan, one of the boro councilmen of that city, and is a sister of Mrs. William Dawson of this place. Mr. and Mrs. Betzendorf will locate at Altoona.

—The chairman of the Democratic County committee has opened headquarters in the Allison building on Allegheny street, lately occupied by the W. C. T. U. The Republicans have their headquarters two doors below, in the Masonic building, so in exchanging courtesies the chairmen will not have to go a great distance.

—The Executive Committee of the Soldiers' Monument and Curtin Memorial Association was to have held a meeting Tuesday but owing to there being no quorum, it adjourned to meet in the Arbitration Room next Saturday afternoon, at half past one o'clock, when it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

—Mrs. A. C. Severance, of Milwaukee, Wis., who is being entertained at the Tripple home on North Spring street, favored the audience at St. John's Episcopal church Sunday evening with a beautiful solo. Mrs. Severance has a sweet voice, highly cultivated and her singing was a great treat to those so fortunate as to be present.

—During the absence of Mrs. Bonbright, organist of the Presbyterian church, the Trustees have secured the services of Miss Atherton, daughter of Dr. George W. Atherton of State College, to preside at that instrument. Miss Atherton is an accomplished musician, and her music is greatly enjoyed by members of that congregation.

—A. C. Mingle, the shoe dealer, has arranged his show windows in a very clever manner, which attracts considerable attention. He has the bottom of each covered with hard coal and this card: "Anthracite, a kind of hard coal that burns without a flame, formerly mined in Pennsylvania but now a very rare mineral." His windows are decorated with shoes of every style and description.

—The twenty third convention of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania met in annual session in the Lutheran church Pine Grove Mills, Pa., Sept, 22-23-24 Rev. Kuhn is chairman of the Committee on book-work Mrs. H. C. Holloway read a paper on the subject: "Are our Woman's Missionary Societies effective agencies for good, in the religious states of the churches to which they belong.

Pawnee Bill's Show.

Pawnee Bill's Wild West exhibition attracted a large number of people to Bellefonte on Saturday. The street parade being a great feature, and was one of the most imposing pageants it has ever been our fortune to behold, embracing almost every phase of wild life, from the American Indian to the Boomerang throwers from Australia. The side walks were thronged by people to witness the novel parade.

Both the afternoon and evening entertainments given in their immense tent, were largely attended by all classes and conditions, from the street arab in his bare feet and tousled hair to the dignified and stately minister of the gospel, the latter enjoying the show with the same gusto as did the former.

We are glad to note that the ministers are softening in their prejudice against entertainments of this order, for our part we heartily approve of them, and Pawnee Bill can congratulate himself on the character of the audience assembled on the ground last Saturday.

Our business relations with the management were of a pleasant and satisfactory nature, his representatives being gentlemen in every sense.

Ministers in Session.

The ministerial association of Bellefonte met Monday afternoon at two o'clock in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association. It was their first fall meeting and Dr. H. C. Holloway presided.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Rev. Wilford P. Shriner D. D., president; Rev. T. J. Askew, secretary.

The sermon for the occasion was read by Rev. T. J. Askew, his text being the 12th chapter of Matthew and the 42 verse. His theme was "The Pre-excellency of Christ." The following brethren were present: Dr. Holloway, Dr. Shriner, Rev. Schmidt, Rev. W. H. Brown and Rev. Askew.

Rev. W. H. Brown was appointed to read the sermon at the meeting on Oct. 6th. It was decided that the thanksgiving services will be held at the Lutheran church and Rev. Mr. Schmidt to preach the sermon.

REV. T. J. ASKEW,
Secretary.

Y. M. C. A. Entertainment.

Last Saturday night Mr. S. B. Miller gave an interesting and instructive talk to a large number of boys at the Y. M. C. A. his theme being "Obedience and Patriotism." He entertained the little chaps with incidents connected with his life as a soldier in the Civil War, and all he said was listened to with the closest attention by his audience.

Mr. Miller has the happy faculty of adapting himself to circumstance and although it is difficult to entertain a crowd of restless boys he succeeded most admirably in doing so.

During the evening Mr. J. C. Rumberger sang some humorous character songs accompanied on the organ by Fred Weaver.

Each Saturday night Mr. Gamel has an entertainment for the boys with a different program each time, and we advise all boys who can possibly do so, to be present at that time.

An Early Morning Blaze.

The alarm of fire sounded Monday morning shortly after two o'clock caused by the burning of the Water Street Cafe. This establishment has been conducted by Mr. O. H. Osman, who has had charge of it for the past month, the building being owned by S. D. Ray, Esq.,

The cause of the fire is a mystery, as Mr. Osman states that when he left at 1:20 Monday morning everything was all right, but about two o'clock neighbors discovered the building to be on fire and immediately sent in the alarm, which was responded to by our fire companies, who confined the flames to the "Cafe," although considerable damage was done to the building adjoining it, occupied by Darius Waite, whose loss is partially covered by insurance. Mr. Ray informs us that his loss is about $500, with $400 insurance. Mr. Osman does not state his loss but has $200 insurance.

A Burglary Sunday Night.

Some time Sunday night a burglar entered the residence of Herbert T. Miller of East High Street by forcing open a window on the first floor and then went up stairs to the room where Mr. and Mrs. Miller were sleeping and took Mr. Miller trousers, the pockets were relieved of $12. in cash and left in one of the down stair rooms. Nothing else was disturbed. No one in the house heard any noise and have no idea at what hour the deed was committed.

Death of an Aged Lady.

Mrs. Mary Ann Smith died at the residence of her son-in-law Dr. H. S. Alexander of Potters Mills Monday morning at an early hour, aged 74 years.

Mrs. Smith was the widow of Henry R. Smith, a soldier of the Mexican War, who died about six years ago. Her home until within the last year had been at Pine Grove Mills, but after the death of her son Lowell, which took place at that time, she has been living with her children at Spring Mills, where she received the tender care of her devoted family.

For the past year she had been in declining health, and her death was the direct cause of a complication of diseases.

The subject of this sketch was a highly respected member of the community in which she lived, an earnest christian woman, and for years had been a faithful member of the Reformed church; to which she was greatly attached.

She is survived by the following sons and daughters, John and William of Spring Mills, Emma of Chicago, Luther of Johnstown, Ella, Emanuel, Michael and Kate of Potters Mills,

The funeral will take place from Dr. Alexander's residence this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Death of Mrs. Frederika Gummo.

Mrs. Frederika Gummo, wife of Charles Gummo, of near Waddle, Centre county, died at her home Monday noon of heart disease. She was one of the old settlers of Buffalo Run Valley, and was known by her friends as "Mother Gummo" for she was constantly doing something for others, and enjoyed the love and respect of everyone.

She was born in Germany and was aged 72 years, 2 months and 4 days. She was the mother of eleven children, all noted for their great height and splendid physical development.

Her husband survives her with the following children: Charles and William, of Wisconsin; Fred, George, Andrew and David, of Halfmoon Valley; Mrs. Cora Gettig, of Braddock; John, of Fairbrook; Mrs. Adam Love, of Pine Hall; Mrs. Samuel A. Dunlap, of Pine Grove Mills, and Kate at home.

She also leaves fifty-two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

She was a consistent member of the United Brethren church and a kind, Christian woman.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning. Interment in the Graysville cemetery.

Death of Mildred Barnhart.

Miss Mildred Barnhart, daughter of John Barnhart, deceased, died Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the residence of William M. McClure on East Bishop street, with whom she made her home. She had been ill for several months and death was due to tuberculosis of the bowels.

Deceased was born in Spring township and would have been twenty-one years old next month. She was a graduate of the Bellefonte High school and held in the highest esteem by all who knew her. She was a member of the Methodist church and a conscientious christian young lady. For some time previous to her illness she was employed as a stenographer in an office in Philadelphia.

Surviving her are her mother, Mrs. Martha J. Barnhart and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Wm. M. McClure, Mrs. Charles Hassinger, Belle, Carrie, John and Harry, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Abram Johnson, of Columbus, Ohio.

The funeral will take place Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of W. M. McClure, Dr. Wilford P. Shriner will officiate. Interment in the Union cemetery.

Hydrophobia Among Cattle.

Hydrophobia has broken out among the cattle and other stock at Saulsburg, Huntingdon county, and is creating consternation among the farmers in that locality. About twenty days ago a mad dog passed through that section of country biting the stock until it was finally killed. This week Vetreinary Surgeon W. H. Fry, of Pine Grove Mills, was summoned to the scene and he found it necessary to kill three head of cattle and several hogs. One of the cows killed belonged to William Hossman and the other two to John Harman. There is no telling where the epidemic will end. Prompt measures however are being taken to stamp it out.
